President Elected

EDMONTON (CP) — Bob Sewell, a 46-year-old Edmonton businessman, has been elected president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Alberta.

Elected Saturday during the party's annual convention, he succeeds Roy Watson of Edmonton who was instrumental in the party's victory, in the provincial election last August.

Sewell and Watson were the only presidential candidates and the vote tally was not disclosed. The term is for one year.

Lillian Knupp of High River was elected woman's president of the association at the annual convention.

Remedial Teacher Mrs. Allison Saba helps children with learning problems

Travelling Remedial Teacher Speeds Process of Learning

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

COBBLE HILL — A travelling remedial teacher in the southern portion of the Cowichan School District is so successful that school authorities are considering establishing a second teacher within the month.

Director of elementary instruction Bob Moss said the pilot program, which was just instituted at Cobble Hill, Shawigan Lake and Mill Bay schools in September, is "proving to be extremely effective. We are seeing mainly two gains. The children are making excellent progress and they are not having to travel away from their base."

EXTRA ASSISTANCE

Moss explained that for many years the school district has had specialized classes but until now students requiring the extra assistance were bused into Alexander Elementary School at Duncan where remedial classes have been established.

This usually means the student is absent from his base school and friends for a year and his school day is increased about two hours through time spent on the bus.

Since remedial teacher Allison Saba has begun visiting the students, authorities have found the student benefits because he remains with his school and friends. The teacher who discovered the learning disability and Mrs. Saba are able to synchronize their teaching methods and he may progress successfully enough to discontinue the special classes before the year ends.

MACLEOD
Fantastic effect

ing methods and he may progress successfully enough to discontinue the special classes before the year ends.

SIMILAR SYSTEM

"We hope to expand the service next year and set up a similar system in the northern part of the school district," Moss said.

He added that the remedial classes in Alexander School will continue but will be comprised mainly of Duncan area kids.

"A remedial child is a capable student who has developed some learning problem that could have resulted from a number of causes," explained Mrs. Saba, who taught for two years in a reading lab at Dawson Creek before coming to Duncan in September.

"When a child falls behind in his ability to read and do written work his problem is referred to the remedial teacher," she said. "He is usually about a year behind classmates."

First Mrs. Saba will test the student for his reading level and potential. "If he is working below his potential he is a good candidate," she added.

After screening the student in an attempt to discover what is causing his learning problem, Mrs. Saba often refers him to the Cowichan testing specialist, Art Gracia, who will then come back to her with specific instructions for helping the student.

EXPERIMENTAL STAGE

Currently Mrs. Saba has 42 students in grades 1 to 7 that she works with in the northern area.

She is at Bench and Mill Bay elementary schools three half-days weekly and at the remaining three elementary schools for two half-days.

During this time she concentrates on language arts, speaking, listening, writing and reading "where most of the difficulties arise" with the students.

With the program still being in the experimental stages, Mrs. Saba teaches in staff rooms, classrooms in basements and even cloakrooms.

She claims the most ideal and efficient method of conducting her remedial work would be to have a travelling classroom on a "small bus-like vehicle."

"Schools are not set up for remedial classes. Most students have auditory problems and are distracted by noises," she emphasized.

TURNING ON

Mrs. Saba looks upon her job as preventive social work. "A child not being successful in school soon learns to turn off. It is important to get to him before he turns off if possible or turn him back on at an early age," she said. "Children with learning difficulties can carry this over to other areas, such as social behavior."

Mrs. Saba says she finds her work rewarding but it has many frustrations and requires continued patience and a never-give-up attitude.

Pilot Dies in Crash

Peter Davis, 25, of Fort St. James, B.C., died Saturday in the crash of a single-engine plane in northern British Columbia.

The plane, a Beaver owned by Northern Thunderbird Airlines of Prince George, disappeared on a 100-mile flight from Prince George to Robb Lake north of Mackenzie.

A Buffalo aircraft from CFB Comox spotted the downed plane about 10:40

a.m. Sunday 15 miles south of the lake. An NTA helicopter was used to retrieve Davis' body.

A crash-locating signal device aboard the Beaver helped the search planes locate it.

Irish Riots Follow Bloodbath

dead by British troops at a protest march in Londonderry. Miss Devlin, the fiery Catholic rights leader, called the shootings mass murder. Right, marchers carry the body of a dead comrade from the scene of the violence. Trouble continued today as a general strike hit Belfast.

Troops Kill 13 Civilians

Times News Services

BELFAST — Bomb explosions rocked Belfast today, and rock-throwing mobs surged through the snowy streets battling British troops in mounting anger against the killing Sunday of 13 civilians by British paratroopers in Londonderry.

Northern Ireland was gripped by a general strike called by the Irish Republican Army as part of its threatened reprisals against the British. Sympathy strikes flared in the Irish Republic and Ireland recalled its ambassador from London in an official show of displeasure.

Sixteen other persons, including two women, were wounded in the shooting Sunday. Civil rights leaders said the troops opened fire without provocation, but an army spokesman said at least 200 shots were fired at soldiers by snipers. One British soldier was wounded, the army's only casualty.

Early today, a spokesman for the official wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army said his organization will kill as many British soldiers as possible in reprisal.

At a hastily-called news conference here, the IRA spokesman said: "There will be reprisals without any shadow of doubt."

Today as snowstorms obscured Belfast, rock-throwing mobs backed by gunmen rampaged through Catholic areas. They sealed off streets with hastily-erected barricades and flaming vehicles. Hidden snipers kept British troops at bay.

An army spokesman said the worst rioting broke out in Belfast's Ardoyne, Anderstown and Falls Road areas, all Catholic strongholds.

"The Falls Road situation has degenerated into anarchy," he said.

Bombs exploded outside a department store and a milk bar in downtown Belfast, injuring 10 persons, including two policemen. Two soldiers were shot by snipers and an army spokesman said two IRA gunmen were believed wounded in a firefight along the fringes of Belfast's Catholic neighborhood.

Sunday's incident, the worst yet involving British troops in Northern Ireland, resulted in the highest single death toll since 15 persons were killed in a Belfast pub explosion in December.

The firing began, when British paratroopers stormed into the Roman Catholic Bogside area in an attempt to arrest youths who were hurling stones and nausea gas canisters at an army barricade.

TROOPS SHOT AT
An army spokesman said that as troops passed the Rossville Flats, an apartment project, shots were fired and acid bombs thrown at them. He said troops fired only at identified targets.

Bernadette Devlin, civil rights campaigner and member of the British Parliament, who was speaking to demonstrators when the shooting broke out, said: "It was mass murder by the British Army."

"This is our Sharpeville. We will never forget it," she said, referring to an incident in Sharpeville, South Africa in 1960 when police fired on unarmed demonstrators, killing 69 and wounding 180.

Major-General Robert Ford, commander of land forces in Northern Ireland, said in a television interview: "There is absolutely no doubt that the parachute battalion opened up only after they had been fired on."

He suggested that those who died might not have been killed by British troops.

Both the rival Provisional and Official wings of the IRA in Londonderry's Creggan housing project called for an immediate general strike throughout Northern Ireland until the funerals of the shooting victims have taken place. Loudspeakers were toured the Bogside Sunday night advising all residents to stay indoors today with closed blinds in support of the strike call.

'SAVAGE' KILLS LYNCH
The killings provoked strong protest from the Irish Republican premier, Jack Lynch. He described Sunday's events as "unbelievably savage and inhuman."

He told journalists in Dublin: "I am appalled and stunned that British soldiers would indiscriminately shoot into a crowd of civilians who were unarmed."

Devlin Assaults Maudling

Times News Services

LONDON — Bernadette Devlin, fiery Ulster independent member of the British Parliament hit, scratched and tore the hair of towering House secretary Reginald Maudling today in the House of Commons and then was half dragged kicking from the chamber.

Miss Devlin, 24, who stands a bare five feet in her shoes, rushed across the House and pounced on Maudling, a hefty six-footer as he resumed his seat next to Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Maudling had just told the House that British troops opened fire on rioters in Londonderry Sunday only after they had been fired on.

SLAP, SCRATCH

Maudling announced the government is setting up an independent inquiry into the rioting and the shooting that followed.

As Maudling finished and resumed his seat on the government front bench, Miss

Devlin, white-faced and with shoulder-length hair flying, tore across the chamber and pounced on him.

She hit, slapped, scratched and tore his hair while the surprised Maudling tried to defend himself with his arms. At one point she almost fell on top of the prime minister.

For a moment lawmakers watched in stunned silence.

Then chief government whip Francis Pym and Opposition leader Robert Mellish grabbed her, helped by several Conservatives and Labor party lawmakers, and half carried, half dragged Devlin, kicking and shouting out of the house.

An anonymous telephone call from an Irishman in London said today a two-man suicide squad is assigned to assassinate the British Prime Minister.

The man said in a telephone call to The Associated Press the two men had been chosen at a meeting of Saor Eire, a leftist offshoot of the Irish Republican Army, at a meeting in County Donegal Sunday night. He said the killing of Heath would be to avenge the shooting of Sunday's 13 dead.

Elsewhere in London, shouting, banner-waving Irishmen marched early today to protest outside Prime Minister Edward Heath's office about British troop action in Northern Ireland.

SYDNEY STRUCK

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Technicians were off their jobs at the CBC's radio outlet here for four hours today as part of a series of rotating strikes against the corporation by the National Association of Broadcast Employees.

Supervisory personnel took over station CBC's early-morning programs before the technicians returned to work at 9:30 a.m. The station was about 45 minutes late signing on.

Commonwealth Link Severed by Bhutto

RAWALPINDI (AP) — Diplomats in Rawalpindi believe an avalanche of countries now will recognize Bangladesh in the wake of Pakistan's quitting the Commonwealth. Australia and New Zealand led the way today.

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's decision Sunday to take Pakistan out of the Commonwealth was interpreted as a face-saving measure, to express displeasure with countries that recognize Bangladesh without actually severing diplomatic relations with them.

Bhutto said he was quitting the Commonwealth because Britain, Australia and New Zealand were planning to recognize Pakistan's former eastern wing. But he added: "We are prepared to have excellent bilateral relations with Britain and other Commonwealth countries."

Today, Bhutto flew to Peking with an entourage of about 60 military, political and economic aides for his first visit with China's leaders since he replaced Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan as president. As the foreign minister who reversed Pakistan's anti-Communist foreign policy in 1963, he was assured a warm welcome in the Chinese capital.

Pakistan's departure from the Commonwealth removes a major obstacle to membership in the group for Bangladesh. But by maintaining diplomatic relations with Britain and other Commonwealth countries, Bhutto probably assures continued economic assistance for his government.

A break with Britain would strand hundreds of thousands of Pakistanis living there and also would endanger trade prospects. Trade with the entire Commonwealth accounts for about 35 per cent of Pakistan's exports and imports, which total more than $1 billion a year.

The Pakistani president said relations with other countries which recognize Bangladesh will not be broken off automatically, but each case will be decided on its merits.

Bhutto severed relations with lesser Soviet bloc countries recognizing Bangladesh, but took no such action when the Soviet Union did so.

Australia and New Zealand announced recognition of Bangladesh a few hours after Pakistan withdrew from the Commonwealth. Britain was expected to follow suit soon.

In separate announcements, Australia and New Zealand expressed a desire for continued good relations with Pakistan and regret at Pakistan's leaving the Commonwealth. India was the first Commonwealth member to recognize Bangladesh, during the India-Pakistan war that freed the new country, and Cyprus became the second last week.

Ottawa Studying Housing Program

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is said to be working on huge new housing programs which, if accepted by the provinces, would constitute the biggest, single attack on downtown blight.

The program also involves a major extension to the existing assisted home-ownership plan under which low-income families can buy their homes instead of renting them.

Sources said today the program, which they say involves "a lot of money," will soon be studied by cabinet and, if approved, there will be discussions with the provinces before any legislation is drafted.

The phase of the program dealing with neighborhood improvement is said to be unique in that redevelopment will be influenced largely by people living in the areas involved. Apart from making money available for renovating and improving dwellings, there will be plans covering day-care centres and drop-in centres.

$100-MILLION PLAN

Under the assisted home-ownership plan $100 million was earmarked last year for homes that low-income earners could buy. The houses generally go to families in the $4,000 to $6,000 wage bracket.

The expansion of this program is expected to include subsidies on interest rates and larger loans, possibly up to 100 per cent of the purchase price.

The sources say the program will not necessarily involve larger over-all expenditures by provinces, since there would be a redirection of money now being spent on public housing.

Former urban affairs minister Robert Andras was said to have completed his proposals before he was moved to consumer affairs in last week's cabinet shuffle.

Reds Seek Pact

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have offered to negotiate an agreement with the Cambodian government covering the Communist's military presence in Cambodia, it was confirmed today.

Communist diplomatic sources confirmed that the approach was made through an unnamed third country, which offered to act as a go-between in an attempt to reach a military understanding.

First news of the overture came from Western diplomatic sources. Saturday who named the third country as the Soviet Union. But Soviet diplomats here denied today that Russia is involved.

TARIFF CUTS OFFERED

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Sunday night Canada is prepared to offer preferential tariffs to developing countries that want to export goods to this country.

Mr. Sharp told about 200 persons attending a public meeting on Bangladesh that this position will be made known by Canada at a forthcoming conference of the United Nations Committee on Trade and Developing in Chile.

He said that the preferential treatment would be offered "without reciprocity."

"I hope the United States and other industrial nations will do the same."

'Takeover' Guards End Jail Revolt

MONTREAL (UPI) — Guards at six Quebec prisons agreed early today to end their takeovers and reopened the institutions following a promise by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette that contract negotiations would begin Wednesday.

The guards have been working without a contract since last July.

A spokesman for the guards, who originally vowed to seal off the prison until contract negotiations began, said Choquette personally promised about 450 guards at the Bordeaux provincial prison that talks would begin Wednesday. The spokesman said they expected some results by the end of the week.

The spokesman said the guards then voted to end their takeovers and that officers at all other prisons would be instructed to return to normal schedules.

The 18-hour revolt by the prison guards began early Sunday.

A spokesman for the guards said about 900 correctional officers seized control of the Bordeaux prison, the Tanguay women's prison and two floors of the Parthenais detention centre in Montreal, and prisons in Waterloo, Joliette and Quebec City.

All are maximum security institutions.

At the Bordeaux prison, guards confined about 20 scholar officers to a cafeteria for several hours Sunday to reinforce their demands for higher pay and immediate contract talks.

Autoreoute police who patrol the highway north of Montreal and who belong to the same union as the guards, staged a supportive work slowdown Sunday, refusing to answer anything but accident or emergency calls.

The prison guards want wage parity with federal penitentiary guards who currently earn a top scale of $10,200 a year after three years' service. The Quebec prison guards, who now earn $7,000 after three years want a $3,000 increase.

Newfoundland Grits Gaining

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Tom Burgess, New Labrador Party leader, and Hugh Shea, Independent Progressive Conservative for St. John's South, both said today they would switch to the Liberal party.

Mr. Burgess also said he would enter the race for the Liberal party leadership, to be decided at a convention here Feb. 4-5.

Both announcements came as Stephen Neary, social minister in the former Liberal government, announced he was withdrawing from the leadership race to support Edward Roberts, former health minister. The moves by Mr. Burgess and Mr. Shea gave the Liberals 21 of the 42 legislative seats. Premier Frank Moores' Progressive-Conservative government holds 20 seats but must elect a speaker when the house meets. One seat is vacant.

Irving to Get Day in Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving is expected to face charges in Manhattan and Zurich as the mystery surrounding his alleged autobiography of reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes spawned new theories on the origin of the book and the disposal of royalties.

A grand jury is investigating what became of the $550,000 that McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. gave Irving to transmit to Hughes as payment for the book. It was reported that Irving would ask for a delay in his grand jury appearance so he could brief his new lawyer on the case.

In Zurich, police issued a warrant for Irving's arrest. The latest speculation restored some of the uncertainty dispelled when Irving, 41, admitted through his lawyer last week that his wife, Edith, had deposited three cheques totalling $550,000 in a Swiss bank account under the name "Helga R. Hughes."

Irving and his lawyer, Maurice Nessen, said Mrs. Irving later withdrew the money at the request of Hughes and redeposited the sum intact in a second Swiss bank.

But CBS and Time magazine reported Sunday that Mrs. Irving deposited only $450,000 in the second bank. The network said in its 60 Minutes program that Irving spent $50,000 of the money, while Time said the author was "frantically" trying to raise $300,000.

COMPUTER TELLS ALL

Time said it learned of the existence of a computerized document that "contains virtually everything that has ever been published about Hughes, as well as thousands of memoranda dictated for and by Hughes—material enough for a dozen 'authentic' books."

The most likely scenario is that Irving somehow obtained some or all of the material in the printout. Time said, "It has been rumored, for example, that an angry former employee from the Hughes operation brought the material to Irving."

Little Effect Felt In Docker Embargo

VANCOUVER (CP) — A dock workers' embargo of United States cargo diverted from strike-bound U.S. West coast ports has had little effect so far, but only because very little diverted cargo has arrived, port officials said today.

Meantime, the registry of the British Columbia Supreme Court refused today to accept an application from the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association for an injunction to halt the boycott by the Canadian branch of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The application was refused on a technicality — the union had not been informed of the action — and a court official said the employers' association could re-submit its application Tuesday.

Ed Strang, president of the employers' association, declined immediate comment on the situation.

Unavailable for comment were Don Garcia, Canadian area president of the ILWU, and Frank Kennedy, president of Vancouver Local 500.

The union officials said last week that B.C.'s 3,200 longshoremen would refuse to handle diverted cargo in order to help their American counterparts win a collective agreement.

Dockers of the U.S. West coast walked out Jan. 17. Negotiations with the Pacific Maritime Association were scheduled to resume today in San Francisco, with the main stumbling block reported to be the financing of a guaranteed income plan.

William Duncan, acting manager of the port of Vancouver, said in an interview he was surprised at the small amount of shipping being diverted here, and theorized that it might be going through the Panama Canal to ports of the U.S. Gulf coast.

were peacefully demonstrating, resulting in the deaths of 13 young men.

Afterward, he telephoned British Prime Minister Edward Heath at the prime minister's home, Chequers, near London, to discuss the developments.

The British government said Sunday night it is not making any statement for the time being. Heath planned to examine further reports on the incident today.

The Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, William Cardinal Conway, and the Bishop of Londonderry, Most Rev. Neil Farnen, sent telegrams to Heath demanding an "immediate, impartial and independent inquiry" into Sunday's incidents.

The shooting began at the end of a march by thousands of people — contravening a government ban on processions — to protest the government's policy of internment without trial.

The marchers had intended to hold a rally in front of the Guildhall in central Londonderry but, because of heavy troop concentrations, the main body gathered instead at a Bogside street corner.

Stones, bottles, chair legs and pieces of iron grating were thrown at troops, who retaliated with rubber bullets. Then the paratroops sent "snatch squads" through the barricades to get the ringleaders, followed by more paratroops. Then the firing broke out.

Lover's World Shrinks

LONDON (Reuters) — The world of frustrated lover Brian Catchpole is growing smaller and smaller.

On order of a High Court judge, Brian cannot venture any farther west than six miles from his East London home.

The order was issued after his former girl-friend, 20-year-old Margaret Davis, applied to have him jailed for violating a previous court order to stay away from her.

Last month Brian, 30, a factory worker, promised a judge that he would not go within 1.6 miles of Miss Davis' home in London's fashionable West End.

But Friday she said he boarded a bus near her home and said: "You might as well give up, because I love you."

The judge's latest order, if taken literally, would bar Catchpole from about two-thirds of Britain.

THEY FIRED AT MOON BUT HIT CIVILIANS

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Scores of Cambodian soldiers blazed away at an eclipse of the moon with automatic weapons Sunday night. One person was reported killed and at least 50 wounded.

The soldiers were trying to drive away Reahou, a mythological monster that supposedly eats the moon during an eclipse.

Tens of thousands of bullets and dozens of flares were fired during the hour-long orgy of shooting. The sky was lit by the flares and tracer bullets.

Some of those injured apparently were hit by bullets falling back to earth.

The legend says that the monster — sometimes described as a dragon and other times as a giant frog — tries to eat the moon in revenge for having its head cut off by the god Vishnu.

With civilians running for cover and traffic stopped as the soldiers let loose with a deafening barrage. Residents were fearful that the shooting heralded a long-expected Communist attack on Phnom Penh.

While the shooting took place in the city, peasants in the countryside crowded into temples, and banged cymbals and gongs to ward off the disappearance of the moon.

Dance Postponed

Today is the 25th anniversary of the Langford fire protection district, but the celebration has been postponed until August.

Cold weather isn't the only reason for delaying the open house and anniversary dance, Chief Allan LeQueune of the volunteer fire department said Friday.

A new fire truck ordered from Quebec won't arrive until August, and meanwhile the department will have time to trace surviving Langford area firemen of earlier days, so they can be invited to the celebration.

The department has complete records from 1954 to date, but would like to know the names and present whereabouts of firemen in the area from 1943 to 1954.

Nicholson Leaves Hospital

Lieutenant-Governor John R. Nicholson is back at Government House after being released from the Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday.

A Government House spokesman said today that Nicholson would be on light duties for a week and the second state dinner, originally scheduled for Wednesday, has been postponed until Feb. 9.

Nicholson was taken to hospital Wednesday night after collapsing during a state dinner.

A hospital spokesman said Nicholson, 70, had recovered quickly from "a slight pulmonary infection."

He said the ailment was not serious.

Cabinet For Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Salvador Allende named a new cabinet for his socialist government in Chile Friday that included Jose Toha, who was censured earlier by congress for violating constitutional guarantees when he was interior minister.

In the new 14-man cabinet, Toha will serve as defence minister. A criminal court judge ruled Thursday that the congressional action against him was unconstitutional, which cleared the way for Allende to reappoint his close friend and socialist leader to the cabinet.

Allende, a Marxist, said at ceremonies in the presidential palace when the new cabinet took the oath of office that he had re-juggled it to broaden the base of his Popular Unity coalition government that includes socialists, Communists and leftist splinter groups.

Short Visit Policy To Continue

St. Joseph's Hospital will continue its policy of shorter visiting hours, set four months ago.

Dr. Enibert Van Tilburg, the hospital's executive director, reports that both patients and visitors are accepting the new visiting hours, which are also meant to allow the staff more time to provide care.

Previously the hours were from 3 to 8 p.m. but on Oct. 4 this was reduced from 3 to 4 p.m. and from 6:30 to 8 p.m. daily on general, surgical and medical wards.

Meanwhile the Royal Jubilee Hospital is maintaining the 3 to 8 p.m. visiting hours but has asked the public to restrict visits whenever possible.

Navy Man Dies

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Retired vice-admiral Paul Frederick Foster, 83, winner of the Medal of Honor at Vera Cruz in 1914 and one of the United States Navy's most decorated men, died Sunday. Foster retired from the navy in 1946 and later served as the U.S. representative of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Trade Debut

TORONTO (CP) — North America's first trade mission to Peking will be from Ontario in March, Allan Grossman, Ontario provincial trade and development minister, announced today.

"This will be an order-book mission," said Mr. Grossman, indicating he expects to sell goods to the Chinese.

Bigger Boats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is sending Cuba bigger, more heavily-armed missile-firing patrol boats, United States defence department sources report.

the weather

Most sections of southern British Columbia had periods of snow overnight with the approach of an upper-level disturbance from the northwest. Snow flurries will end over southern B.C. this afternoon and skies will clear this evening behind the upper-level disturbance. Temperatures will be a little colder tonight under clear skies and will remain below normal for at least the next 48 hours.

North Rail Pact Not Approved

The federal cabinet has not approved a proposal to build a railway from northern B.C. to Whitehorse in the Yukon. A spokesman for the federal transport department today denied reports that the cabinet had approved a federal-provincial railway plan but said approval in principle was reached last July.

Tentative agreement was reached between Premier Bennett and Transport Minister Don Jamieson. In broad terms, Ottawa and B.C. will share running rights on CNR and PGE trackage in northern B.C., and Ottawa will build the CNR from the PGE line north of Fort Nelson to Whitehorse.

B.C. wins in the agreement because PGE gets access to Prince Rupert via CNR trackage from Prince George. This would open development of mineral and timber resource in the north. The Vancouver Province reported Friday the only reason the agreement has not been announced is so Ottawa can release details in conjunction with the anticipated federal election soon.

The spokesman dismissed the report as "newspaper speculation."

"No comprehensive proposal has been submitted to cabinet and the cabinet has made no decision. The question is how, what and when," he said.

A joint technical committee has been negotiating specific details since Bennett and Jamieson agreed in principle last year. The spokesman indicated a key unresolved question is financing.

He denied Ottawa is prepared to spend between $60 and $70 million on the Whitehorse extension, saying finances have not been arranged between Ottawa and B.C. for this route.

The PGE is building a 350-mile extension from Fort St. James to Deas Lake, scheduled for completion in 1974.

Churchman Featured On Program

The public affairs program Connections, sponsored by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches, tonight will feature an interview with Dr. A. B. B. Moore, moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Moore speaks with Cliff Harwood, general chairman of the United Church Presbytery, and Dr. Larry Devlin, director of continuing education at the University of Victoria.

Among topics to be discussed: church union, the war in Vietnam and the problems of today's youth.

Train Robber's Wife Wants Another Baby

LONDON — The blonde wife of Thomas Wisbey — one of Britain's Great Train robbers — has appealed to the government to allow her to sleep with her jailed husband so that they can have a baby. Rene Wisbey's husband was sentenced to 30 years in 1964 for his part in the 1963 train robbery which netted $6 million. One of their two teenage daughters died two months ago in a traffic accident.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — Rod Moore, 22, of Carbonear, Nfld., has become the fourth contender for the leadership of the Liberal party, to be decided at a convention here Feb. 4-5. Moore is a second year arts student at Memorial University. The major candidates for the post to be vacated Feb. 7 by Joseph Smallwood are Edward Roberts, health minister in the previous Liberal government, and former social minister Stephen Neary. Vincent Spencer, a Windsor, Nfld., businessman also is a candidate.

KATMANDU, Nepal — King Mahendra of Nepal died today after suffering a heart attack Sunday, the government announced. He was 51 and had been king for nearly 16 years. King Mahendra was immediately succeeded by his oldest son, 26-year-old Crown Prince Birendra, as ruler of the Hindu kingdom in the Himalayas between India and Tibet.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Senator Edmund Muskie has emerged from a vote of 35,000 Arizona Democrats as their favorite for the party's presidential nomination, but the vote in urban areas cut his share of delegates to the state convention. In Arizona cities, New York Mayor John Lindsay and Senator George McGovern of South Dakota showed strength and, between them, accumulated more delegates than did Muskie, considered the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination.

When the complicated count was completed Sunday, Muskie had 189 delegates, Lindsay 118 and McGovern 102, with 85 uncommitted. Five others back other candidates.

MONTREAL — Garrett Brock Trappell, the airplane hijacker shot and wounded in New York Saturday after pirating a jet there from Los Angeles, is well known to Montreal and other area police departments. "He's the coolest guy you ever saw," said a Montreal-area police officer who spoke to Trappell after the latter was arrested, here more than a year ago following an armed robbery. "What surprised us is the fact he got caught," another policeman explained.

CAPE TOWN — South African veterinarian Geoffrey Mager, 52, said farewell to his family Saturday and set off for Rio de Janeiro in a flat-bottomed rowing boat named Mother Carey's Chicken. Mager, also a farmer and formerly in the South African navy, left from Donkergat, near Saldanha, about 70 miles north of Cape Town. He hopes to make the 3,000-nautical-mile passage in three to six months. His plywood and fiberglass boat is equipped with solar stills which can produce about 12 gallons a day of fresh water from the sea.

Policeman Saves Family

A Saanich police officer pulled four members of one family from the icy waters of a pond on Vanalman Road Saturday afternoon, then revived one child with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

All four members of the Anton Horvath family are in good condition today. They were rescued by Const. David Smith, who lives across the street from the Horvaths at 640 Vanalman.

Michael and Stephen Horvath, aged 4 and 2, were playing on the ice with two friends when first Michael, then Stephen, fell in. Their playmates ran to the Horvath house at 641 Vanalman to get help.

Smith said he saw the Horvaths running towards the pond and followed. Horvath had jumped in and was having difficulty keeping the boys' heads above the seven-foot-deep water.

The policeman lay flat on the ice and pulled the boys from the water. The father climbed out himself, but not before Mrs. Horvath had also fallen in and was retrieved by Smith.

Michael, unconscious, was revived after two minutes' artificial respiration by Smith, who said he learned the technique in police basic first aid training.

Tory Tough Line Heard in Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal government will have to watch its step if the general feeling of Progressive Conservatives in Alberta ever becomes party policy.

Don Getty, minister of intergovernmental affairs, said Sunday there are many people in the party ready to "take a strong stand" to ensure the province gets a fair shake in future dealings with Ottawa.

The disclosure came at the end of the party's first annual convention since the former Social Credit administration was upset in a provincial general election five months ago.

Mr. Getty told a news conference he isn't interested in fostering party militancy against Ottawa, but that the wishes of the rank-and-file obviously have to be considered. Premier Peter Lougheed, observing there was "a maturity about the convention that bodes well . . . for the future of the party," indicated the province may have to put some pressure on the federal government.

OUTLINES STRATEGY

"Our strategy in the months ahead is to recognize where our leverages exist in various fields and to ensure that instead of being asleep at the switch, that we be conscious of them and alive to them and that they are fully utilized."

It is felt the province's main strength lies in its abundant non-renewable resources, notably oil, natural gas and coal.

The three-day convention was attended by more than 1,200 persons.

Mr. Lougheed and his cabinet tended to avoid commenting on possibly contentious issues, especially questions about what could be expected when the legislature opens March 2.

Start using the Government's own rules to save a bundle on income tax.

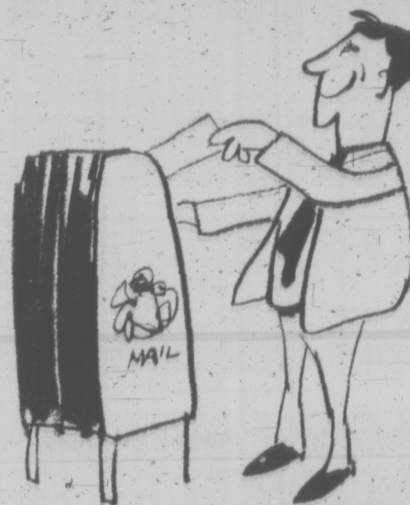

Here's a perfectly legal way to use the Government's own rules to save on income tax.

The Government has a law that says in effect "If you save now for your retirement, we'll let you pay as much as $2,500 into a registered retirement savings plan, and we'll let you knock it off your income."

So you merely lower taxable income by putting up to $2,500 in our registered retirement savings plan and don't pay the tax on it.

Say you're married, have two children, and earned fifteen thousand in 1971. Depending on the province you live in your tax saving could amount to $880 which is a bundle in any man's language.

To top it all off, the money you save can make more money. Essentially there are four ways you can do this. You can have us invest it in stocks. You can have us invest it for a guaranteed rate of interest. You can have us invest it in income producing bonds and mortgages. Or you can divide your money up using any combination of these three alternatives.

The beauty of it is: You can actually control the combination as your needs change over the years.

For instance you could invest in stocks for several years, for long-term growth. And then as you get closer to retirement you might want to switch to a guaranteed interest rate.

You can change your combination again and again. This means your plan is flexible at all times.

And you can get your money out when you want it.

When you eventually choose to withdraw it, you have to pay taxes on it at that time, of course. But this is what's most important.

You pay tax on your money when you decide to pay it. This means later, when you're likely in a lower tax bracket.

This has led some to call this plan a tax shelter.

One fellow we know plans to pay into it for several years, watch it grow, then take it out to replace normal income while he lazes in Majorca.

But let's face it, the real benefit comes from leaving it in 'til you retire.

It's especially valuable because we don't have a lot of salesmen out making calls, therefore you don't have to pay sales commissions.

Just call us to get started. But don't put it off.

You can't deduct any deposits from your 1971 income after Tuesday, February 29th.

So fight fire with fire. Make the rules work for you. Save a bundle on income tax. Phone us now!

Slow Boat to China

Although the "other side" is being somewhat elusive so far regarding President Nixon's eight-point proposal for settlement of the Vietnam conflict, there are oblique indications that Moscow and Hanoi at least may be giving it a serious reception. Peking, on the other hand, while officially silent, has permitted an unofficial commentary to dismiss the American offer as "a clumsy trick."

But the inscrutability of Chinese diplomacy, particularly as the world waits for Mr. Nixon's visit to Peking, leaves the Asian giant's real opinion still hidden. Moscow's Pravda has termed the Nixon proposal "new," which removes it from the category of earlier offers which were brusquely dismissed. The Pravda report also says that the proposal is being "attentively analysed" by North Vietnam authorities. The latter, however, have not shown anything to date but a negative approach.

The Chinese attitude seems to require much more investigation until it can be understood. The only reaction has been expressed by the New China News Agency, which is an official arm of the government. The denunciation, however, was in the form of a commentary, which diplomatic observers do not rate as an official response even though it must be recognized as probably indicative of the government's thinking.

The commentary denied the Nixon proposal was "a plan to end the war" and called it "actually a plan of aggression... for prolonging the war." It denied the validity of troop withdrawal offers, used such phrases as "ridiculous prattle," and "wholly preposterous," and said the only avenue to peace was acceptance of Hanoi's seven-point proposal. This apparently involves immediate, unconditional withdrawal of American forces, and acceptance of the "provisional revolutionary government" of South Vietnam.

The statement by Mr. Nixon embodies the ultimate North Vietnamese objectives in the war, inasmuch as the Viet Cong would have a free hand to get its candidates elected in the proposed election, and American forces would go home as soon as the prisoner exchange was completed. The vehemence of Communist rejection, therefore, suggests that the North feels it necessary to demonstrate convincing reluctance, or that it really intends to humiliate the United States greatly in excess of its present embarrassment for reasons which would extend far beyond the Southeast Asian diplomatic sphere.

That conceivably would be a result which both Russia and China, in long-term planning, could support. The quicksands of Southeast Asia may prove to be even deeper than they look.

Man's Home Is His Castle

The quote of the year has got to be Liberal Leader Pat McGee's reported complaint to an Oak Bay audience last Friday that Victoria Times folk "sit in their expensive homes writing editorials and telling the people of Oak Bay what to do."

It's hard to believe that even Pat would put foot so far into mouth as this statement implies. Times editorial writers, while rather gratified to hear their homes so described — even the one who lives in a rented room — were nevertheless astonished to find themselves arbitrarily ruled out of the right to an interest in Oak Bay provincial politics. The fact is that all three live in the Oak Bay electoral district — as inexpensively as possible — and have a voter's interest in what goes on there.

The only recent Times editorial

advice to the people of Oak Bay that comes to mind was a suggestion that Liberal candidate Mel Couveller might be a good man to watch between now and the next provincial election, with a thought to putting him into the Legislature — another expensive House — as a member of the Liberal contingent. (Sorry Pat, did we say something wrong?)

If Pat's purpose was really to advise Oak Bay Liberals that they shouldn't sit back and wait for newspapers to do their political campaigning for them, he was right on. So we bear no resentment. Actually, the thought of sitting around in our expensive homes writing editorials has a definite appeal. It just made us a little nervous that the property tax assessor — and even the business licence man — might find out about it.

Good Start

The victory of Col. A. O. Hood in the byelection Saturday brings City Council to full strength and adds a member who should contribute valuable qualities to consideration of the city's affairs. A native of Victoria, Col. Hood has shown, in the short time since his retirement from a military career, a keen interest in local affairs. On the city planning commission, the library board and the centennial committee he has proved himself to be a man who does his homework and gives his methodical best to the job at hand. He should fit in well with the new regime at City Hall which has begun its term with welcome promise of a good administration.

"... boy ... do I miss the excitement of that crescendo of disenchantment ... the meetings at the union hall ... the balloting ... the placards ... the picket lines ... the weeks and weeks of bargaining ... the ..."

Prescription for Education

TORONTO — The Commission on Post-Secondary Education in Ontario, set up three years ago to prescribe for the next decade, has cautioned that its recommendations are "a first draft." Wisely so: this first draft will disappoint some and shock many, and the Commission sorely needs the "benefit of public comments" which it says it wants to further public hearings before submitting a final report to the government.

The first draft is a disappointment because the Commission has simply copped-out on trying to construct and present a concept of education against which the current incoherent mess of higher education can be judged. The closest it comes to a definition or a philosophy of education are some vague mumbblings about its being a "humanizing process" and that its "basic purpose is learning." This, of course, can mean anything and is a tacit surrender, give or take some proposed reforms, to the status quo.

Perhaps this is a bit unfair. The Commission is concerned, by implication at least, with the widespread tendency to equate education with training and it makes a number of proposals to break down the rigid linkage between educational achievements and professional or occupational requirements. Admission to professional practice, for example, would be solely on the basis of examinations and experience, with no reference to degrees or diplomas held.

and college programs for part-time students; greater flexibility in curricula and transfer mobility between institutions; no formal admission requirements and free make-up courses for dropouts who wish to continue of "complete" their education. And many, many more.

All of which sounds great until one encounters the shock of how it is to be paid for. On the overall cost, the Commission admits it simply doesn't know, but it agrees, tacitly at least, that it will be astronomical by recommending radical changes in how it should be financed. In effect, it says that education must be totally available but that the users, except for the low income group, must bear a greater share of the cost.

Currently, the Ontario government pays about 88 per cent of the operating costs of post-secondary institutions under a formula system based on student enrolment. The Commission would first $625. Engineering students would have paid $1,100 instead of $545, medical students $1,500 instead of $675, graduate students $1,500 instead of $435.

Most drastic of all, students at the 20 Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology (which have been the great success story of Ontario education in the past decade) would pay not $150 in tuition fees but $625, $750, $1,100 or $1,500 (depending on their field) if the government accepts the Commission's thinking.

Moreover, the Commission recommends that all existing grants, loans and bursaries to the students themselves be scrapped in favour of a new scheme which would pay all tuition and living costs for three years for students whose personal and family income falls within the lowest quartile on income distribution in the province — that is, for 1970, below $7,500. Partial assistance would be available on a sliding scale for incomes up to $10,000, but above that only interest-bearing loans, repayable within 15 years after graduation, would be available. Such loans would also be open to low-income students after they have used up their three years of grants.

Ability to Pay

This loan program is a variation of the "Educational Opportunity Bank" concept. Repayment would be geared to ability to pay and fixed as a percentage of taxable income in any year; after 15 years, any unpaid balance would be forgiven. Women would not have to repay if they marry and have no taxable income of their own.

There is, of course, an argument for all this and the Commission presents it as best it can. One of the anomalies of present financing, for example, is that the later years of higher education are the most expensive (particularly so in the professional fields) while the student's share of the cost is at its lowest the further one goes, the cheaper it becomes, from the student point of view. This public subsidization of professional training hardly seems equitable in view of the incomes it enables the trainees to earn after graduation.

Still, the political effect of the Commission's proposals cannot be gainsaid: the middle class would be hit, and hit hard. Such families, generally speaking, have not benefited from existing student assistance programs but they have benefited from subsidized tuition fees and these will go up, if the Commission prevails, by hundreds of dollars — without any compensating reduction in provincial taxation. There is no suggestion in the Commission's report that the province, by cutting the operating grants paid to institutions, would be reducing its overall commitment: the money would simply be used to pay for the Commission's additional programs.

CAMPUS ENVIRONMENT

separate these costs into research and instructional costs and fund the research component on a project and performance basis; instructional costs would then be shared 50-50 by the government and the student.

The effect of this will be higher tuition fees — in all cases substantially higher, and in some cases drastically so. In the 1970-71 academic year, for example, the average fee for undergraduate general arts and science at Ontario universities was $480; under the Commission's new formula, this would have been

Provide Home

For the rest, however, education is whatever anyone thinks it is and the Commission's prime concern is to provide more of it. There must be maximum diversity of supply, total accessibility in demand. "Educational services should be available to all citizens throughout their lives," is the way the report puts it at one point. The "whole spectrum" of services must be available to everyone and everyone must be able to select what he thinks is best for him.

Thus, there should be a "University of Ontario" to provide courses via television, radio and correspondence; satellite campuses in communities beyond commuting range of existing institutions; university courses at those Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology which are over 30 miles away from a university; government encouragement of small, local colleges; special grants to expand public libraries and public access to school, college and university libraries; legislation to encourage study leaves for employees; easier access to university the racial issues of Africa. Mr. Trudeau at Singapore placed the security issue in the context of race relations, leading at worst to bloody racial war which would cast some Commonwealth members against others.

In the form of Rhodesia that context remains, if anything, larger and more ugly than a year ago. While Mr. Smith declines comment on the content of the settlement proposals, he acknowledges that the present situation is very serious.

He has impressed on the British commission charged with finding out whether the settlement is acceptable to Rhodesians the importance of ensuring that methods are seen to be fair. Mr. Smith said he has also made it clear that from a Commonwealth point of view, Africans should be allowed to hold meetings freely and African politicians outside the National Assembly should be allowed to speak and to use the radio.

Racial Conflicts

Regardless of the outcome in Rhodesia, the Commonwealth as a multiracial organization is bound to have, and perhaps draw strength from, dealing with racial conflicts. The right of member governments to independent action, asserted strongly at Singapore by Mr. Heath, has never been an issue, Mr. Smith said.

It was inappropriate and "completely illogical" for members who disagree with policies of other governments "to leave the Commonwealth." He hoped the lesson had been learned at Singapore. Taking the example to its extreme with India and Bangladesh, Mr. Smith, asked if they could be expected to appear together at Commonwealth conferences replied, "Why not?"

Leading officials will be meeting in Ottawa to discuss the format and site of the next heads-of-government meeting, Mr. Smith said. Ottawa itself is high on the list of sites, if a suitable time can be agreed. Mr. Smith said he has some proposals for changing the format of the next meeting to overcome objections that Singapore was too similar to the UN, with the old club atmosphere and informality lost.

That the next meeting should be in an early planning stage, at all points to the Commonwealth's durability, living with or surmounting highly divisive racial and Third World problems.

DAVID HUMPHREYS

Strength From Conflicts

LONDON — A year after proposed British arms sales to South Africa divided leaders sharply — irreconcilably, some thought — the Commonwealth is together and functioning. The worst fears that the Singapore heads-of-government conference would be fatal have not been realized.

Pausing amid present trouble, Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith said in an interview that he believes the organization of 31 countries has actually been strengthened. "There is now a better understanding of the importance and value of consultation on difficult issues," he said.

The study group on security of the Indian and South Atlantic oceans, the justification for British arms sales, never met. Britain went ahead with plans to allow South Africa to order helicopters, yet to be delivered, and several countries resigned from the study in protest.

"I think and hope that the issue is no longer current," Mr. Smith said, pointing out that no arms have been sold. The issue was not Soviet naval power but the wisdom of countering it in such a way that might do the West more harm than good in Africa.

Explosive Items

In the year since Singapore, other potentially explosive items have been added to Mr. Smith's agenda — the war between two members and the emergence of Bangladesh, seeking membership, the British proposals for a settlement in Rhodesia, and the coup, ousting the democratically elected government of Ghana.

Britain has gone ahead steadily with plans to ensure a British presence in the Indian Ocean — six frigates or destroyers, one battalion group, several Nimrod reconnaissance aircraft and helicopters; not necessarily all in the Indian Ocean but all East of Suez. These units are only just beginning to function with Australian, New Zealand, Singapore and Malaysia forces or facilities in a five-power defence arrangement within the Commonwealth.

U.S. authorities have announced that they intend to maintain units of the 7th Fleet in the area. The U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise and seven destroyers sailed in an impressive show of force into the Bay of Bengal during the Indian-Pakistani war.

Cowichan Response

As a friend of Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, I would like to express my thanks for your generous support of her 1971 campaign.

It is your generous use of prime front and second page space for photos and stories that makes the Victoria Times project such an annual success and I feel this year the best ever.

I am convinced that nobody stretches $1.00 as far as Dr. Lotta and her U.S.C.

I count it a tremendous privilege, as I know you do also, to organize her brief visit to the Cowichan area and I hope that your paper will be on the U.S.C. team for years to come.

With sincere thanks and all good wishes,

Badges for Aides

I agree with your columnist, Mr. Jack Scott, that the sports topnotchers are lamentably over-praised and over-paid — as are those who have reached stardom in showland. Along with agreeable bus drivers and good typists, I would like to see special merit badges handed out to the great array of nurses' aides in the private nursing hospitals, whose hourly wage has for so long been a bone of contention in the labor market.

Here we have thousands of dedicated women throughout the province who perform menial and distasteful tasks for a meagre pittance, namely (in most cases) $1.30 per hour. They must work fast, too, these girls, for the majority of privately-owned nursing hospitals are understaffed. They must possess the altruistic qualities of patience and understanding, along with their better-educated sisters, the RNs.

Surely these aides are worthy of more than a little commendation from those in high places, and a raise in pay along with it. Mrs. K. Coulthard, 1754 Cedar Hill Cross Rd.

From the Times of Jan. 31, 1912:

OTTAWA — A handsome testimonial of their regard for Sir Wilfrid Laurier was made yesterday by the Liberals of the Yukon on behalf of whom Fred Congdon, ex-M.P., presented Sir Wilfrid with an address and desk set. The articles are unique. There is a paper-cutter of solid gold with a northern scene worked out in gold on the handle. A golden sun is shown rising behind hills of gold. There is a gold ink bottle and the address is contained in a moose skin which has pick, shovel and pan burned upon it.

Those Marvellous Old Men of Caucasus

By SULA BENET
New York Times

Two summers ago, in the village of Tamish in the Soviet autonomous republic of Abkhazia, I raised my glass of wine to toast K. L. Zantari, a man who looked no more than 70. "May you live as long as Moses (120 years)," I said. Mr. Zantari was not pleased. He was 119.

For centuries, the Abkhazians and other Caucasian peasants have been mentioned in the chronicles of travellers amazed at their longevity and good health. Even now newspaper reports in the United States and elsewhere will tell of an Abkhazian who claims to be 120, sometimes 130.

After spending months with them, I still find it impossible to judge the age of older Abkhazians. Their general appearance does not provide a clue. You know they are old because of their grey hair and the lines on their faces, but are they 70 or 107? I would have guessed 70 for all of the old people that I encountered in Abkhazia and most of the time I would have been wrong.

It is as if the physical and psychological changes which to us signify the aging process had, in the Abkhazians, simply stopped at a certain point.

Walk and Swim

Most work regularly. They are still blessed with good eyesight and most have their own teeth. Their posture is unusually erect, even into advanced age; many take walks of more than two miles a day and swim in the mountain streams. They look healthy, and they are a handsome people. Men show a fondness for enormous mustaches.

There is an old saying that when a man lies on his side, his waist should be so small that a dog can pass beneath it. The women are dark-haired and also slender, with fair complexions and shy smiles.

Since 1932, the longevity of the Abkhazians has been systematically studied on several occasions by Soviet and Abkhazian investigators. These studies have shown that in general, signs of arteriosclerosis, when they occurred at all, were found only in extreme old age. One researcher who examined a group of Abkhazians over 90 found that close to 40 per cent of the men and 30 per cent of the women had vision good enough to read or thread a needle without glasses and that more than 60 per cent had reasonably good hearing.

There were no reported cases of either mental illness or cancer in a nine-year study of 123 people over 100. All showed clear and logical thinking and most correctly estimated their physical and mental capacities. They showed a lively interest in their family's affairs, in their collective and in social events. All were agile, neat and clean.

Why do they live so long? The absence of a written history, and the relatively recent period in which medical and anthropological studies have taken place, preclude a clear answer. Genetic selectivity is an obvious possibility. Constant hand-to-hand combat in the early centuries of Abkhazian existence may have eliminated those with poor eyesight, obesity and other physical shortcomings, producing healthier Abkhazians in each succeeding generation.

Sex Starts Later But Lasts Longer, And No One Retires

But documentation for such an evolutionary process is lacking. When I asked the Abkhazians about their longevity, they told me they live as long as they do because of their traditions in sex, work and diet.

The Abkhazians, because they expect to live long and healthy lives, feel it is necessary self-discipline to postpone and conserve their energies, including their sexual energy. They say it is the norm that regular sexual relations do not begin before the age of 30 for men, the traditional age of marriage; it was once even considered unmanly for a new husband to exercise his sexual rights on his wedding night. Today, some young people marry in their mid-20s instead of waiting until 30, to the consternation of their elders.

Postponement of satisfaction may be smiled at, but so is the expectation of prolonged, future enjoyment, perhaps with more reason. One medical team investigating the sex life of the Abkhazians concluded that many men retain their sexual potency long after the age of 70, and 13.6 per cent of the women continue to menstruate after the age of 55.

Kutuba Murat, 101, confided to me that he had waited until he was 60 to marry, because while he was in the army "I had a good time right and left."

Sperm at 119

At present, he said with some sadness, "I have a desire for my wife but no strength." One of his relatives had nine children, the youngest born when he was 100. Doctors obtained sperm from him when he was 119, in 1963, and he still retained his libido and potency.

The only occasion on which medical investigators found discrepancies in the claimed ages of Abkhazians was when men insisted they were younger than they actually were. One said he was 95, but his daughter had a birth certificate proving she was 81 and other information indicated he was 108. When he was confronted with the conflict he became angry and refused to discuss it, since he was about to get married.

Makhtel Harikl, 104, with whom I spoke in the village of Duripsh, said the explanation was obvious in view of the impending marriage: "A man is a man until he is 100, you know what I mean. After that, well, he's getting old."

Abkhazian culture provides a dependent and secondary role for women. When they are young, their appearance is stressed and when they are married, their service in the household is their major role. In order to narrow her waist and keep her breasts small, she wears a leather corset around her chest and waist; the corset is permanently removed on her wedding night.

Virginity is an absolute requirement for marriage. If a woman proves to have been previously deflowered, the groom has a perfect right to take her back to her family and have his marriage gifts returned. He always exercises that right, returning the bride and announcing to the family: "Take your dead one."

Without Guilt

Despite the elaborate rules — perhaps, in part, because they are universally accepted — sex in Abkhazia is considered a good and pleasurable thing when it is strictly private. And, as difficult as it may be for the North American mind to grasp, it is guiltless. It is not an evil to be driven from one's thoughts. It is a pleasure to be regulated for the sake of one's health — like a good wine.

Over-eating is considered dangerous and fat people are regarded as ill.

When the aged see a younger Abkhazian who is even a little overweight they inquire about his health. "An Abkhazian cannot get fat," they say. "Can you imagine the ridiculous figure one would cut on horseback?" But to the dismay of the elders, the young eat much more than their fathers and grandfathers do.

The Abkhazian diet, like the rest of life, is stable; investigators have found that people 100 years and older eat the same foods throughout their lives. They show few idiosyncratic preferences and they do not significantly change their diet when their economic status improves.

Their caloric intake is 23 per cent lower than that of industrial workers, though they consume twice as much vitamin C; the industrial workers have a much higher rate of coronary insufficiency and a higher level of cholesterol in the blood. The Abkhazians eat without haste and with decorum. No matter what the occasion, Abkhazians take only small bites of food and chew those very slowly — a habit that stimulates the flow of ptyalin and maltase, insuring proper digestion of the carbohydrates which form the bulk of their diet.

The Abkhazians eat relatively little meat — perhaps once or twice a week — and prefer chicken, beef, young goat and, in the winter, pork. They do not like fish and, despite its availability, rarely eat it. The meat is always freshly slaughtered and either broiled or boiled to the absolute minimum — until the blood stops running freely or, in the case of chicken, until the meat turns white.

At all three meals, the Abkhazians eat abkhaz, a corn meal mash cooked in water without salt, which takes the place of bread. Abkhaz is eaten warm with pieces of home-made goat cheese tucked into it. They eat cheese daily and consume about two glasses of buttermilk a day.

The other staples in the Abkhazian diet — staple in Abkhazia means daily or almost so — include fresh fruits, especially grapes; fresh vegetables, including green onions, tomatoes, cucumbers and cabbage; a wide variety of pickled vegetables, and baby lima beans, cooked slowly for hours, mashed and served flavored with onions, peppers, garlic, pomegranate juice and pepper.

Although they are the main suppliers of tobacco for the Soviet Union, few Abkhazians smoke. They drink neither coffee nor tea. But they do consume a locally produced, dry-red wine of low alcoholic content. Everyone drinks it, almost always in small quantities, at lunch and supper, and the Abkhazians call it "life giving." Absent from their diet is sugar, although honey, a local product, is used. Toothaches are rare.

Better Hearing

The buttermilk, pickled vegetables and probably the wine in their diet help destroy certain bacteria and, indirectly, prevent the development of arteriosclerosis, doctors believe. In 1970, a team of Soviet doctors and Dr. Samuel Rosen of Mount Sinai of New York, an ear surgeon, compared the hearing of Muscovites and Abkhazians and concluded that the Abkhazians' diet — very little saturated fat, a great deal of fruit and vegetables — also accounted for their markedly better hearing.

Although the Abkhazians attribute their longevity to their work, sex and dietary habits, there is another, broader aspect of their culture that impresses an outsider in their midst: the high degree of integration in their lives. A sense of group identity that gives each individual an unshaken feeling of personal security and continuity and permits the Abkhazians as a people to adapt themselves — yet preserve themselves — to the changing conditions imposed by the larger society in which they live.

From the beginning, there is no gap between expectation and experience. Abkhazians expect a long and useful life and look forward to old age with good reason: in a culture which so highly values continuity in its traditions, the old are indispensable in their transmission. They are the opposite of burdens; they are highly valued resources.

Their integration is in their kinship structure. It is literally the Abkhazians' all-encompassing design for living: it regulates relationships between families, determines the settlement of disputes, defines the position of women and marriage rules. Through centuries of non-existent or ineffective centralized authority, kinship was life's frame of reference and it still is. In times of crisis, sickness or death, all kinsmen are informed and immediately converge on the stricken home, offering help and automatically taking over the responsibilities that have been left unfulfilled.

Kinship in Abkhazia is an elaborate, complicated set of relationships based on patrilineage. At its centre is the family — extended through marriage; it is then extended to include all families which can be traced to a single progenitor and finally to all people with the same surname, whether the progenitor can be traced or not. As a result, an Abkhazian may be kin to several thousand people, many of whom he does not know.

The extraordinary attitude of the Abkhazians — to feel, needed at 99 or 110 — is not an artificial, self-protective one. It is the natural expression, in old age, of a consistent outlook that begins in childhood.

There are no separate facts of life for children and adults. The values given children are the ones adults live by and there is no hypocritical disparity (as in so many other societies) between adult words and deeds. Since what they are taught is considered important, and the work they are given is considered necessary, children are neither restless nor rebellious. As they mature, there are easy transitions from one status in life to another.

An Abkhazian is never retired, a status unknown in Abkhazian thinking. From the beginning of life until its end, he does what he is capable of doing because both he and those around him consider work vital to life.

He makes the demands on himself that he can meet and as those demands diminish with age, his status in the community increases.

In a nine-year study, doctors made a detailed examination of the work habits of the aged. One group included 82 men, most of whom had been working as peasants from the age of 11, and 45 women who, from the time of adolescence, had worked in the home and helped care for farm animals.

Weeding Crops

The doctors found that the work load decreased considerably between the ages of 80 and 90 for 49 men and between 90 and 100 for the rest. Among the women, 27 started doing less work between 80 and 90 and the others slowed down after 90.

It was also observed that 21 men and seven women over 100 years old worked a four-hour day on the collective farm — the men weeding and helping with the corn crop, the women stringing tobacco leaves. Under the collective system, members of the community are free to work in their own gardens but they get paid in what are, in effect, piece-work rates for the work they do for the collective.

Competitiveness in work is not indigenous to Abkhazian culture but it is encouraged by the Soviet government for the sake of increased production. It is too soon to predict whether this seemingly fundamental change in work habits will affect Abkhazian longevity.

My own view is that Abkhazians live as long as they do primarily because of the extraordinary cultural factors that structure their existence: the standardization and certainty of both individual and group behavior, the unbroken continuum of life's activities — the same games, the same work, the same food, the same self-imposed and socially perceived needs. Along with this there is the increasing prestige that comes with increasing age.

Dear Mom, Pop, Anyone...

WASHINGTON — One of the most expensive things wrought in this country since the automobile is a large body of people who cannot write letters. This group ranges in age from about 13 to oh, maybe 25. Its members are, in some respects, well educated.

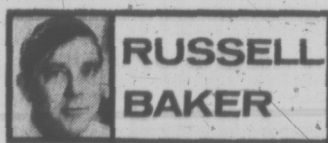

Their inability to write letters seems to be a new variation on an old educational quirk. There have always been people who just could not "get" arithmetic, or Latin, or chemistry. Until now, however, anyone who could not "get" letter-writing has been regarded as a low-grade oaf.

It has always been assumed that anybody, with very little training, could learn to write. "Dear Mother, I am as well as can be expected, but need money desperately; be a dear and enclose your check for $50 by return mail. Love, Harold."

Now, however, we are seeing a growing number of men and women who could no more compose such a statement and get the message delivered than most of us could explain the quantum theory to a class of second-graders.

The explanation probably has something to do with McLuhan's message about the victory of talking furniture over the written word. If you have spent all childhood's waking hours with one ear at a telephone, the other at a record-player, and both eyes fixed on a television tube, the silent mechanics of letter-writing are likely to seem hopelessly complicated. It is much easier, if you are 1,500 miles from home and need $50, to telephone collect.

In short, we have bred a generation of compulsive telephonists, who seem on the whole, to have only the vaguest sense that long-distance matter is expensive. They are mostly sensitive people, however, and are willing to try letter-writing when parents beg for mercy. It rarely works.

RUSSELL
BAKER

To see why, imagine the case of the Eastern family with daughter wintering in Michigan. This being the totally mobile generation, the daughter's dearest friends will be wintering in New Mexico, Maine and Florida. What is more natural to these children of the electronic moment than to communicate by telephone? Especially since the telephone company has this insouciant policy of letting daughters charge long-distance calls to mothers' telephones without consulting mothers.

Mother throws the same old scene. Daughter swears to do better. Of course she realizes it is silly to spend $18 to talk to Dora in Florida when she can write to Dora for only eight cents.

Very soon, mother has to collect call. It is daughter. She is writing to Dora and wants to know how to spell "Groovy." She has phoned New Mexico to ask Mona, who thinks it is spelled g-a-r-o-u-d-y, and they have this bet . . .

Pretty soon, there is another collect call to mother. "What is that thing you say I have to put on the letter? . . . a stamp? . . ."

And then, later, another collect call. "How is the mailman going to know where to find Dora? . . . Of course I didn't put her address on the envelope. Really, mother, how could I? I don't even know her address. And what's an envelope? . . ."

The way to avoid bankruptcy is the multiple-choice letter. Below is a model multiple-choice letter for children to send to a father. The father gives a stack of these letters to his loved ones away from home, along with self-addressed, stamped envelopes. The letter-writer has only to cross out all the words in parentheses except those which most nearly express what he wants to say, put the thing in the stamped envelope, seal the flap and put in a mailbox.

Example:
Dear (father) (dad) (pop) (old sport).

I was really (great) (boring) (a drag) to receive your last letter and hear all the news from home. I (am sorry) (couldn't care less about) (am sick and tired of) having you hassle me about the tremendous telephone bills. I (will try to break the habit) (think you ought to complain to the phone company if you don't like it) (sometimes think you love your life's savings more than you love me).

The reason I haven't sent you a multiple-choice letter lately is because I (have broken my pencil arm and have been unable to do any heavy crossing out) (cannot remember what a mail box looks like) (have found love and peace in a Fascist commune, and am forbidden to communicate until I get all the grease off the kitchen stove).

I need ($10) ($25) ($50) (new stereo set) (sports car) (ball bondsman).

Something happened here which you should know about: (We had a party and accidentally burned down your house). (A friend of mine telephoned Peking and charged it to your phone). (I have been kicked out of school).

I (am) (am not) in jail.

Yours (sincerely) (truly) (patronizingly) (filially) (in love and high school) (barbarically).

Kitimat Shooting Spree
Ends in Man's Arrest

KITIMAT (CP) — An RCMP officer disarmed a lone gunman Sunday after a shooting spree near the RCMP office here. There were no injuries but two buildings and two cars, one of them a police cruiser, were damaged.

Police said a man armed with a shotgun forced a Kitimat taxi driver to drive him to the RCMP office. When the taxi arrived, the man got out and blasted away, damaging the office, a nearby B.C. Tel office and two cars.

An RCMP officer on duty at the time disarmed and arrested the man. Charges were pending.

Hospital Generator Installed

As the B.C. power crisis ended Friday contractors at the Royal Jubilee Hospital were finishing installing a new $90,000 emergency generating unit.

The unit, which will be tested in early February, is capable of meeting the hospital's peak demand of between 600 and 700 kilowatts.

In a 10-minute power failure that occurred one afternoon last week the present emergency unit, capable of producing 300 kilowatts, automatically went into service. This system is wired only to those parts of the hospital where a power failure would be an immediate threat to life.

Dog Tag Canvass Planned

For the second year in succession, Mrs. Joan Yates of Becher Bay has been appointed to canvass the special sheep protection district on southern Vancouver Island for dogs.

Mrs. Yates says she hopes to canvass the same roads she did in 1971 — mostly in the Happy Valley-East Sooke area — and extend the territory to include most of Colwood, Langford, Metsoin and Sooke.

She will be assisted by M. G. Watton.

They will check each house on a door-to-door basis, selling licenses for dogs at each residence.

Licenses will also be available from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday at the 17-mile House on North Sooke Road.

You A Poor Talker?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement and works like magic to give you poise, self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances there are ways to make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address and zip code to: Conversation, 355 E. Lange St., Dept. 650-40, Mundelein, Ill. 60060. A postcard will do.

If Taxpayers Object
Bylaw Goes to Vote

Whether the Greater Victoria school board goes to a referendum to raise needed funds for 1972 operating expenses depends on the district's taxpayers.

The board published a bylaw Saturday which would allow it to spend the amount of this basic education program — a figure decided by the provincial government — plus 10 per cent, plus $553.

Unless 100 taxpayers in the school district register their opposition to the bylaw before March 1, it will go through. If 100 owner-electors do object, the issue will go before all the taxpayers in a referendum.

Education Minister Donald Brokenshire introduced into the legislature Friday a measure to limit districts' spending to 108 per cent of the basic education program. If the legislation passes through the house, the bylaw — and possible resulting referendum — will be changed to authorize spending of 108 per cent of the basic program plus a figure of about $400,000.

Those people who object to the spending bylaw must be owner-electors within the boundaries of School District No. 61 (Greater Victoria). Owner-electors must own property in more than one municipality, be may sign only one petition or write one letter objecting to the spending bylaw.

Arctic Training

Arctic survival training under realistic conditions will be the order of the day for men of Victoria's Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment Feb. 11, 12 and 13.

Flying to Kamloops late that Friday night, two platoons of the militia unit will spend the next two days in a winter warfare training exercise.

They will be joined by troops from Kamloops' Rocky Mountain Rangers.

On arrival at the airport they will move straight out into the Mount Lolo area and set up improvised shelters in the deep snow.

In anticipation of below-zero temperatures, the exercise is called Cold Nose II.

For two days the part-time soldiers will undergo rigorous training on snowshoes.

Each man will carry 50 pounds of winter equipment and take his turn in putting the heavy equipment to use.

During the day they will be taught winter survival techniques and Arctic warfare skills.

The Victoria contingent will be under the command of Major David Osland.

Leading a five-man observer team from Victoria will be Lt.-Col. Michael Heppell, the regiment's commanding officer.

The exercise, which is far more advanced than most of the training in which the militia takes part, is in line with the new policy of incorporating militia with the regular forces.

Soldiers Flying
Out Into Cold

Flying out of the Victoria International Airport Wednesday and Thursday, about 600 soldiers of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Work Point will take part in a winter training exercise until Feb. 19.

Named, Rapier Thrust II, the exercise will take place in sub-zero temperatures in the Chilcotin area with more than 1,000 men being involved.

The Work Point contingent will act as the attackers during the final stages of the manoeuvres Feb. 14 to 16.

They will be opposed by the 1st Signal Squadron, elements of the 3rd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery; C Company, 1st Battalion, PPCLI; 1st Service Battalion; 1st Combat Group Medical Unit and 1st Tactical Air Control Unit, all of Calgary.

Also in the opposing group will be elements of the 3rd Field Squadron, CFB Chilliwack.

CF5 aircraft from Cold Lake, Alta., helicopter and Buffalo aircraft from CFB Edmonton and an air observation troop from CFB Shilo, Man., will also be taking part in the exercise.

The 1971 winter exercise of the 1st Combat Group was held in Dundurn, Sask. At that time, below-zero temperatures, combined with the wind-chill factor, were equivalent to 75 below zero.

N. Viets Pounded

SAIGON (AP) — More waves of United States B-52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese troops and supply buildings today along a 200-mile stretch of South Vietnam's western border, from the demilitarized zone to the central highlands. They were the heaviest raids there in four months.

The air attacks came as Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. Army chief of staff, told a Saigon news conference that North Vietnam is preparing for a multi-phase offensive next month in South Vietnam just below the demilitarized zone and in the central highlands.

The South Vietnamese command reported that its air force destroyed three North Vietnamese tanks Sunday just inside the border, about 32 miles westnorthwest of Kon-tum.

In Vientiane, the Laotian capital, informed sources said half of a Laotian battalion is missing after being routed from positions 20 miles north of Luang Prabang.

Korean Bid For Credit
Wins Favor

SEOUL (AP) — Canada agreed today to consider favorably South Korea's request for a $20-million credit to finance purchase of microwave communication equipment from Canada.

This was contained in a joint communique issued after a meeting between Jean-Luc Pepin, Canadian trade minister, and his South Korean counterpart, Nak-sun Lee.

The requested funds would be in addition to $5 million Canada's Export Development Corp. provided to South Korea last year to help finance import of similar equipment from Canada.

The two ministers agreed to hold working-level discussions soon to study the conclusion of a bilateral investment guarantee agreement to encourage Canadian investment in South Korea.

Pepin, who arrived here Saturday at the invitation of the Seoul government, also met with President Chung-hee Park and Premier Jong-pil Kim.

Pepin, accompanied by six aides, left for Japan later today.

Turner Tries Wings In Finance Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner takes an important step in his spring budget planning today and Tuesday at a two-day conference of provincial counterparts in Jasper, Alta.

Federal government sources say a budget is being planned for late March or early April—assuming a snap general election call by Prime Minister Trudeau does not intervene.

First item on the agenda at Jasper is a general review of unemployment and the economic situation and the prospects for the balance of 1972. This will form the basis for the federal budget with its outlook for the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Indications are the federal government is unlikely to change its underlying fiscal and monetary policies. Government spending now far exceeds tax revenues as an incentive to economic expansion. The economy shows signs of beginning to respond to it and it is believed the government will not change its stance.

The economic review at Jasper is to give the provincial treasurers an opportunity to learn Ottawa's outlook, for use in their own budget planning. Ottawa hopes in return to get some inkling of how provincial taxing and spending plans for 1972-73 are likely to affect the over-all picture.

EXPECTS A DEFICIT

In 1970 calendar year, combined revenues of all provincial governments, including subsidies from the federal government, ran to $13.5 billion, and expenditures, including their grants to municipalities, totalled $12.5 billion.

Last October, former Finance Minister E. J. Benson said in a statement billed as a tax-cutting mini-budget that he expects a deficit of $1 billion for the current fiscal year. He anticipated revenues of $13.58 billion and expenditures of $14.58 billion.

Finance ministers meeting now are held about four times a year. The mid-winter or spring meeting is the one at which the 11 participating governments exchange notes on plans. But each side—the federal and the 10 provinces individually—usually complain that the other is not as frank as it should be.

The new federal budget will have to be cast in the framework of the revised Income Tax Act taking effect last Jan. 1. It cut tax rates on lower incomes, raised them on upper income earners, and brought capital gains into taxation for the first time in Canada.

Mr. Benson said his revised tax plan was not intended to raise more revenue than the old system. It will be some months, however, before revenue figures will show the result.

Employer's payroll deductions of income for January tax are not due to be paid to the revenue department before Feb. 15. The government does not expect revenue to come in from the taxation of capital gains much before the end of 1972.

Also on the Jasper agenda will be discussion of a new five-year plan for federal subsidies to the poorer provinces. Ottawa now uses some of its general revenues from all parts of Canada to help strengthen the revenues of the weaker provinces.

The provinces asked for a more generous formula but Ottawa has refused. The existing plan would give the provinces $1.1 billion in 1972-73, rising to $1.6 billion in 1976-77 on the basis of anticipated growth of population and economic output generally.

Study Group Named

President pro tem Dr. Hugh Farquhar of the University of Victoria has announced the names of those faculty members who will serve on two commissions studying university governance and academic development.

Appointed to the commission on university governance under chairman Dr. S. A. Jennings are: Dr. Alan Gowans, Mr. Dean Halliwell, Professor A. E. Loft, Dr. G. O. Mackie and Professor N. A. Swainson.

Appointed to the commission on academic development under chairman Dr. D. J. MacLaurin are: Dr. John M. Dewey, Dr. G. Reid-Elliott, Dr. Walter Muir, Dr. W. R. D. Sewell and Professor P. T. Young.

The commissions will sit for six months and will submit their reports to Farquhar by the end of August.

Canadian Professors Increasing

TORONTO (CP) — At least 75 per cent of university teaching staffs in Canada will be composed of Canadians within the next five years, the president of the University of Manitoba said Friday night.

Ernest Sirluck told an audience at York University that a period of sharply reduced growth of universities will be partially responsible for helping raise the ratio.

He said a continuing naturalization of landed immigrants and a commitment by many universities to recruit Canadians whenever possible will also help.

He blamed lack of proper statistics for the controversy over the number of foreign professors teaching in Canada.

Statistics confirm that Canadians constitute 62 per cent of university staff. Mr. Sirluck said, British 10 per cent and other foreign countries outside the United States 13 per cent.

"We may look upon the 15 per cent of our teaching staff who are U.S. citizens with diminished terror," he said.

Duane Thomas Arrives at Courthouse after Arrest.

Silent Cowboy Star Gets New Adversary

DALLAS (AP)—Duane Thomas, the running back who let his ball-carrying speak for him as he led Dallas Cowboys to the National Football League championship, was up against a new adversary today.

Thomas, 24, and his younger brother, Bertrand, 21, were arrested near Greenville, Tex., Sunday and charged with possession of marijuana, a felony.

Officers searching for a stolen automobile found two bags of marijuana in a car being driven by the Dallas star.

The pair was released on bond of $5,000 each, posted by a Greenville lawyer.

After the Cowboys' won the Super Bowl, coach Tom Landry had said Thomas' silent attitude during the season — which included little communication with his teammates and none with the news media — created some "tensions" on the team.

Highway Patrolman Wendel Jeter and Deputy Sheriff Norman Gray arrested the Thomas brothers about 12 miles west of Greenville as they looked for a stolen car similar to the luxury model Thomas was driving.

"He was real nice and never belligerent while we were talking about the possibility the car might be stolen," said Gray.

But after finding the marijuana in the vehicle, Gray said he and Jeter told the brothers of their rights and both were quiet after that.

While looking inside the car for its engine number, Gray said he smelled marijuana smoke. Further search turned up two bags of the weed.

Ski Controversy Heats Up As Karl Schranz Ruled Out

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Austrian ski officials plan to appeal the disqualification of Karl Schranz, Austria's former world skiing champion, from the 1972 Winter Olympic Games.

"I can't believe it," said Dr. Karl Heinz Klee, president of the Austrian Ski Federation, after the 33-year-old Schranz was disqualified by the International Olympic Committee for allowing his name to be used for commercial reasons.

"We'll launch any appeals that are possible against this," Klee said.

French ski officials also were upset at the ruling. Maurice Martel, president of the French Ski Federation, called the decision "very deplorable" and demanded a meeting of his group to discuss the situation.

"I proposed in St. Moritz to both the Austrians and the Germans that we should withdraw our ski teams from the Sapporo Winter Games if only one of our skiers is disqualified," said Martel. "But they merely said it was a good idea and very laudable, but no decision was reached."

There have been reports that Schranz, who was preparing to compete in his fourth Olympics, was earning $40,000 to $50,000 a year from his ski connections. The Austrian did not deny them, but he contended he was being punished for a crime of which all athletes are guilty.

SAYS ALL GET HELP

"The Russians are subsidized by their own government and all international athletes get help from one source or another," he said.

"It's an emphasis on the wrong principle. I think the Olympics should be a contest of all sportsmen with no regard for color, race or wealth."

Schranz, the son of a poor railway worker who died young and left Schranz's mother to raise a family of five won a silver medal at the 1964 Olympics and finished first in the men's slalom in the 1968 Games, but was disqualified for missing a gate on his run. The disqualification caused considerable controversy. He appealed the ruling, but was turned down.

"As a preliminary measure members of the Austrian skiing team, both Alpine and Nordic, will not take part in official training tomorrow," Klee told a news conference.

Asked about reports that Austria would withdraw its entire team if any skier was declared ineligible, Klee said: "All possibilities are open."

Heinz Bruckner, president of the Austrian Olympic Committee, appeared with Klee.

The two said that never did the eligibility committee, executive committee or IOC call on them until Sunday and never was Schranz allowed to defend himself.

MAY NOT SURVIVE

On Sunday Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, raised doubts that the Winter Olympics will survive much longer in their present form.

The 84-year-old president, speaking at the opening of the 72nd session of the IOC, lamented the rising costs and growing commercialism of skiing and figure skating.

IT'S THIS WAY KARL, may be what Austrian ski manufacturer Franz Kupstein is saying as ski ace Karl Schranz (right) arrives at Olympic Village after being disqualified from Winter Olympic Games. Schranz is alleged to have broken amateur rules by promoting Kupstein's products.

Meloche Scores a Double, Shuts Out Leafs, Canucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

During their National Hockey League training camp last September, California Golden Seals appeared in deep trouble for a goalie after a deal with Chicago Black Hawks seemed to turn sour.

The Seals had given up their regular netminder, Gary Smith, for goalie Gerry Desjardins of the Hawks and two forwards. But Desjardins, who fractured his left arm late last season, never got a chance to start for the Seals.

Then the Hawks sent goalie Gilles Meloche to the Seals in place of Desjardins after it was discovered that Desjardins' arm injury had not healed.

Meloche was a sensation for the Seals right away. In his first game Oct. 28 he shut out the mighty Bruins 2-0 in Boston. He has had his ups and downs since then, but Sunday afternoon he earned another shutout, stopping 29 shots to lead the Seals to a 2-0 victory over Vancouver Canucks.

It was Meloche's fourth shutout of the season, and the second in a row, coming on the heels of Friday night's 3-0 whitewash of Toronto Maple Leafs.

In another afternoon game, New York Rangers played to a 1-1 tie, while Sunday night, Boston downed St. Louis Blues 5-2, and moved six points ahead of second-place New York in the East Division. Chicago stopped Detroit Red Wings 4-2; Philadelphia Flyers shut out Pittsburgh Penguins 4-0; and Los Angeles Kings and Buffalo Sabres played to a 2-2 tie.

HABS BLANK LEAFS

Saturday, Montreal Canadiens dumped the Blues 4-0; Vancouver beat Toronto 5-2; Minnesota dropped New York 4-2; Chicago defeated Pittsburgh 4-2; and Los Angeles and Detroit played to a 4-4 tie.

Meloche, who admits he likes playing with the Seals because "we're all young and we've got great spirit," showed some of that spirit Sunday against the Canucks as he performed brilliantly for his second consecutive shutout.

In the third period, when the Canucks were pressing, he kicked out 16 shots, and in the first period, although stopping only seven shots, he made one key save while foiling a scoring attempt by Dale Tallon at close range.

Stan Gilbertson scored in the first period for the Seals and Walt McKechnie in the third. In between the California defence protected Meloche for the shutout.

New York Rangers fired 41 shots at Cesare Maniago in the Minnesota goal as they sought to avenge the 4-2 loss to the same team the previous night, but only one shot got past the acrobatic goalie, that of Bobby Rousseau. Murray Oliver got the tying goal for Minnesota in the third period.

The Bruins scored two goals while short-handed in beating the Blues. Defenceman Bobby Orr, who assisted on three goals, scored the first short-handed goal when he took a pass from Derek Sanderson, cut in front of the net and put the puck behind goalie Wayne Stephenson, who was making his first NHL appearance.

Ralph Klassen got the Blades' winning goal in Edmonton with five minutes left to play, snapping a 1-1 deadlock that had existed since the first period.

In Regina, rookie Mike Wanchuk scored four goals for the Pats. Glen Toner, playing his first game in a Pat uniform since joining the club Saturday from Swift Current, scored two.

Doug Horbal and rookie Dan Gare scored the goals in Calgary as goaltender John Davidson came up with his sixth shutout of the season against the Broncos, last in the Eastern Division.

Dale Shaw, Palmer Win Four-Ball Title

(Times News Services)

Canadian women's golf took on added international lustre Sunday when Victoria City champion Dale Shaw and Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops captured top honors in the prestigious International Four-ball tournament at Miami, Fla.

The strong British Columbia pairing, belting out birdies on virtually every other hole, romped to an easy 8 and 7 victory over the American team of Lancy Smith and Jane Bastenchaux in the 36-hole final.

Miss Shaw and Miss Palmer combined for nine birdies on the first 18 holes and a best-ball score of 65 compared to the 72 recorded by the U.S. girls.

Miss Palmer sealed the victory by recording another birdie on the 29th hole.

SHUTTLE STARS BEGIN TITLE QUESTS TONIGHT

Play in the week-long Victoria and District badminton championships gets underway tonight at 7:30 at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Conducted this year by the Esquimalt Badminton Club, the tourney will run nightly during the week and conclude with finals Saturday night.

Liz Anne Ogden of Esquimalt will be back to defend the women's title and is seeded first ahead of Diana Rogers of the Racquet Club.

Bob Lewis of Cordova Bay is top-seeded in the men's singles competition. Dave Howells of the Racquet Club is ranked second.

Dowling Had Tough Fight To Retain Squash Crown

If you want a player to tout for future stardom in squash racquets, try Mike Desaulniers.

Mike, an agile little 14-year-old from the Vancouver Racquet Club, didn't make it to Sunday's results:

He was up against top-seeded John Dowling in the under-19 final and for a while it appeared that the talented Dowling might lose his crown.

In a match that produced strategy and shotmaking of a calibre not often seen in junior competition, Desaulniers snatched the first two games from his taller, 17-year-old rival, who was playing on his home courts.

Experience and steadier play eventually prevailed and Dowling came from behind for a 3-2 triumph, but little Mike's struggle wrapped up the three-day tournament in spectacular fashion.

LEFTY GOMEZ

LEFTY GOMEZ NEVER LOST SERIES GAME

NEW YORK (AP) — Lefty Gomez, Ross Youngs and Will Harridge are the newest members of baseball's Hall of Fame. It took only a vote by the veterans committee Sunday to place their names among the sport's immortals.

Gomez, the pitching pride of New York Yankees during the 1930s, was the most glamorous name of the three unanimously selected by the 10-man oldtimers' committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Youngs was a reckless runner in the Ty Cobb mold and a switch-hitting stylist with the old New York Giants. Harridge was president of the American League for a record 22 years.

Gomez never lost a World Series game in six decisions during his golden years, 1931-38.

In another afternoon game, New York Rangers and Minnesota North Stars played to a 1-1 tie, while Sunday night, Boston downed St. Louis Blues 5-2, and moved six points ahead of second-place New York in the East Division. Chicago stopped Detroit Red Wings 4-2; Philadelphia Flyers shut out Pittsburgh Penguins 4-0; and Los Angeles Kings and Buffalo Sabres played to a 2-2 tie.

In the boys' under-17 section, it was an all-Vancouver battle for the crown, with Chris Richardson with a 3-2 victory over Brian Coverton.

Angus Izard took the under-15 final by edging fellow-Victorian Glen Bradshaw 3-2, and Allan Hardy of Vancouver topped Victoria's Ron Forbes in the under-13 final.

Competition was also close in the all-Vancouver duel for the girls' under-19 title as Claire Munana stroked her way to a 3-2 win over Taffy Savard.

In the under-16 girls' final, Tinker Robinson earned another championship for Vancouver as she downed Victoria's Brenda Cameron by a 3-1 count.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — American Basketball Association commissioner Jack Dolph says that his league "unfortunately is back in a recruiting war" with the National Basketball Association, but he refused to disclose how the ABA would conduct its college draft this year.

Following a meeting of the league's trustees Dolph said: "We have made certain arrangements for player procurement and drafting, but since anything I say would give aid and comfort to our competitors, I will not say anything more about the draft now."

Dolph said the league did not conduct a draft at its meetings. At last year's all-star break ABA announced the first three rounds of its draft, and wound up signing such collegiate stars as Artis Gilmore and Jim McDaniel.

"We only won three quarters of the signing war last year," said Dolph.

"We're going to win 100 per cent this year."

Dolph also said that only a small possibility exists — if it exists at all — that there would be a common draft this year.

Then he added, "I think this will be the last unknown draft." Dolph said that no further progress had been made on the proposed merger of the two leagues.

At present there is a bill affecting merger pending in a house subcommittee. It is not expected to be acted upon until late next month.

A short time after Dolph's news conference, former California senator Thomas Kuchel, representative for the two leagues in Congress on the merger matter, said that "merger undoubtedly has to come or pro basketball will face extinction — basketball has to have it."

"An annual bidding war would guarantee bankruptcy and banishment of pro basketball," Kuchel stressed.

Boxing Doors Opened For Women's Clubs

Women who were invading the realm of box lacrosse have apparently won the war for official recognition.

Neil Gray of Coquitlam, president of the B.C. Lacrosse Association, said Sunday a commission was set up during the two-day 47th annual BCLA meeting at the Ingham Hotel to fix rules for girls wishing to participate in the sport.

Five sections of the province — including the Greater Victoria area — last year formed teams involving girls aged eight to 21, but no specific league, playing rules or championship plans were laid down.

Gray said more than 150 delegates who attended the meeting selected Glennie Godfrey of Coquitlam as commissioner in charge of bringing the sport to the women. She will set up a committee to determine rules.

PROGRESSIVE STEP

"We feel this is a progressive step forward," said Gray who Sunday was elected to his second year as president as the BCLA met in Victoria for the first time since its formation.

Fred Wooster and Hugh Reston of Saanich were elected as vice-presidents along with Hugh Reston of Burnaby.

Dorothy Robertson of New Westminster, secretary; Bob Cole of Coquitlam, treasurer; Jack Crosby of Burnaby, registrar, and Stan Bednash of Burnaby, promotions director, round out the executive.

Gray received a coveted honor when he was presented with the BCLA's "man of the year" trophy Saturday night during the association's awards dinner, at which several Victoria-area sponsors and officials also received recognition for outstanding contributions during the 1971 season.

The E. J. Hunter Company, which sponsors several teams in the Saanich Minor Lacrosse Association, received the Irving Calder Menard Trophy as the outstanding sponsor.

Mount Douglas Aces Shine In Achilles Track Trials

RICHMOND — Mt. Douglas High School runners from Victoria created quite a stir Saturday at Minoru Park during high school and senior open qualifying trials for the eighth annual Achilles Indoor Games.

Sparkling the greatest comment were the superb performances by Mt. Douglas sprinter Brad Yakubovich, who beat his old rival, Albin Dukowski of Vancouver College, in both the 50 and 400 metres.

Running on a frozen track under cold conditions, Yakubovich clocked a time of five seconds flat in the 50 metres and was again over-all fastest with a time of 52.1 seconds in the 400-metre event.

Yakubovich also anchored the Mt. Douglas relay squad to victory in the 1,600-metre relay event for high school boys with a time of 3:34.5. Others on the team were Don Nemeth, John Satchwell and Ernie Carson.

Nemeth was fourth in the 50 metres and fifth in the 400. Carson turned in the second fastest time in the 800-metre event for high school boys.

TIM THORNE WINS

Jim Thorne, also of Mt. Douglas, won the 3,000 metres in 9:02.8 while clubmate Bill Klassen placed ninth in the 1,500 metres.

Bakers Join Pacific Loop

Executives of the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League voted unanimously Sunday to add a Victoria team to the league ranks for the 1972 season.

The franchise was awarded to a group headed by John McDonald, under the sponsorship of McDonald's Bakery, at a special one-hour session during the B.C. Lacrosse Association meetings at the Ingham Hotel.

Murray Holmes, business manager for the franchise, says they will submit a brief to the senior directorate, which must give final approval.

"We won't have any difficulty satisfying the directorate," commented Holmes.

Holmes says the team "basically has the nucleus" of the club which won the Canadian Junior B championship last year. He says last year's coach Bill Munroe will again guide the team with Barry Forbes remaining as team manager.

MEET DEMANDS

Sunday's announcement culminated weeks of preparation by the Victoria group to meet league demands. The team will be known as the Bakers and will play home games at Memorial Arena Tuesday and Thursday nights with occasional Saturday games.

Chinese Technical Group Visits Manitoba Mines

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — A 13-member mission from the Republic of China began a two-day visit of Thompson and the International Nickel Company mining development here Sunday with a brief tour of the Soab and Birchtree mines.

Tien Ju Fu, director of the metallurgical industries ministry and leader of the mission, said in an interview the purpose of the mission was to observe Canadian mining techniques.

Tien said the non-ferrous mining industry in China, consisting mainly of copper, lead and zinc, is not producing enough to meet the needs of the country.

The mission, composed of technical experts, mining engineers and an exploration geophysicist, is on a 24-day tour of Canadian mining centres.

Chamber Election

EDMONTON (CP) — Gerry Pearson, an accountant at Clarkson Gordon and Co., was elected president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce Friday night, succeeding retiring Keith Cumming.

Guest speaker Grant MacEwan, Alberta's lieutenant-governor, said that while Albertans must look carefully at how resources are used, mountain scenery, wilderness areas, wildlife, badlands and even our ice and snow, I think these are chamber of commerce business, too.

Rest for Readers

EDMONTON (CP) — University of Alberta students have drawn up a 10,000-signature petition asking for a one-week break in late February and early March.

The petition calls for the university to establish a Student Reading Week this year and in subsequent years.

Dave Blitek, students' union academic vice-president, said the break is vital to allow students to recuperate after long winter studies and to prepare for spring exams.

Such a break has already been instituted at some Canadian universities and was recently adopted by Red Deer community college.

Centre Opens

CALGARY (CP) — A community correction centre to help prisoners adjust to society will open here soon, says Pierre Jutras, director of the Drumheller, Alta., correctional institute.

Co-operation Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — There is an urgent need for more provincial-municipal co-operation, Mayor Ivor Dent said Friday.

Dent, former president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, told the opening session of the Progressive Conservative annual meeting that areas of jurisdiction and responsibility must be established, not through legislation "but through meaningful dialogue."

Now Five Finger Exercise

Fulfilling the promise of a compact and varied theatrical season for his first stint as Bastion Theatre's artistic director, Edwin Stephenson follows two fun shows—Once Upon a Mattress and Plaza Suite—with the highly dramatic, award-winning Peter Shaffer play, Five Finger Exercise.

The play has been called hypnotic, fascinating and great theatre.

Five Finger Exercise will be seen at McPherson Playhouse, starting Feb. 8. There will be altogether five performances, including Feb. 9, 10 and 11 with two performances on the Saturday at 6 and 9 p.m. Other curtain times are 8 p.m.

Five visiting professional actors will appear in the five leading roles.

Most familiar to Bastion audiences will be Sam Payne, who has directed and appeared in several Bastion Theatre productions and who has just completed directing Christopher Fry's Venus Observed for Vancouver's Metro Theatre.

With him will appear well-known Vancouver stage, radio, TV and film actress, Marjorie Le Strange, and Frank Maraden, who has performed many roles in the United States and Canada.

Maraden's wife, Marti, and Colin Miller are the other two visiting members of the cast.

Five Finger Exercise is the story of a young German engaged as a tutor who is tragically disillusioned when he finds that the loving family life he had expected to share is dominated not by love, but by selfishness.

The ruthless intention of each member to exploit him for their own destructive reasons is revealed gradually and circumstances build to a suspenseful climax.

Eight Nominations for Hayes

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Soul singer Isaac Hayes was nominated today for eight Grammy awards, the most for any one artist in the annual awards—for the previous year's best recordings.

Songwriter-singer Carole King and the Carpenters, featuring Karen Carpenter singing her brother's arrangements, received four Grammy nominations each.

Grammies Statuettes shaped like old-fashioned gramophones will be awarded on television March 14 by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. Nominations in some of the 34 categories were:

Record of the Year — It's Too Late, sung by Carole King; Joy to the World, Three Dog Night; My Sweet Lord, by George Harrison; The Theme from Shaft, by Isaac Hayes; and You've Got a Friend, by James Taylor.

Album of the Year — All Things Must Pass, George Harrison; The Carpenters, by The Carpenters; Jesus Christ Superstar, by various artists; Shaft, Isaac Hayes; Tapestry, Carole King.

Song of the Year — Help Me Make It Through the Night, written by Kris Kristofferson; It's Impossible by Sid Wayne and Armando Mangano; Me and Bobby McGee, by Kris Kristofferson and Fred Foster; Rose Garden, by Joe South; You've Got a Friend, by Carole King; Best New Artist — Chase; Emerson, Lake and Palmer; Hamilton, Joe Frank and Reynolds; Carly Simon and Bill Withers.

JOPLIN NOMINATED

Best Female Pop, Rock and Folk Vocal Performance — Gypsies, Tramps and Thieves, sung by Cher; Me and Bobby McGee, sung by Janis Joplin; The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down, Joan Baez; Tapestry, Carole King; and That's the Way I've Always Heard It Should Be, Carly Simon.

Best Male Pop, Rock and Folk Vocal Performance — Ain't No Sunshine, Bill Withers; I Am I Said, Neil Diamond; If You Could Read My Mind, Gordon Lightfoot; It's Impossible, Perry Como; You've Got a Friend, James Taylor.

Best Such Performance by Duo or Group — All I Ever Needed Is You, Sonny and Cher; The Carpenters, by The Carpenters; How Can You Mend a Broken Heart, Bee Gees;

RAMS TRADE DEACON JONES TO CHARGERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Rams traded veteran star defensive end David "Deacon" Jones and two other players to the San Diego Chargers Saturday for line-backer Jeff Stagg and three draft choices.

Jones, 33, a perennial all-pro in the late 1960s, went to San Diego along with reserve running back Lee White and backup defensive tackle Greg Wojcik.

In exchange, the Rams, who had given up their first three draft choices earlier, got the Chargers' second pick in Tuesday's draft and their second and third choices next year.

Jones, an 11-year veteran, was slowed by an injury to his right foot last season and missed three games, ending his consecutive game streak at 143. Rookie Jack Youngblood played well filling in for him, and presumably will inherit his starting job.

The 6-foot-5, 250-pound Jones has long been considered one of the National Football League's fiercest pass rushers.

Vikettes Topple Thunderettes

Vikings Nipped By Single Point

It was a glorious night Saturday for the University of Victoria Vikettes in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association women's basketball league.

Vikettes pulled off the biggest upset of the season by topping arch rival University of B.C. Thunderettes with a sizzling outburst in the last four minutes, scoring the final 12 points for a thrilling 56-50 decision.

By handing Thunderettes their first loss in WCIAA games, Vikettes climbed into the first place with UBC and clinched one of the two West Division playoff positions.

Vikettes have now won nine of 12 starts while the Thunderettes have a 9-1 mark.

"I've coached for 10 years, but this was the biggest win I've ever experienced," beamed Vikette coach Mike Gallo. "Especially when they're touted as the best in Canada and we won by coming from behind like that."

CONTROL BOARDS
Vikettes brought the fans, who jammed UVic gym, to their feet with the late spurt, which started with the Thunderettes leading 50-44. Gallo, using some late strategy, told his girls to concentrate more on the backboards. With Dierdra Ogden, Lorna McHattie, who hit for 15 points, and Yvonne Letellier, who hooped 12, gaining "good inside positions," the Vikettes controlled the boards in the dying minutes. Rose Jossul had 14 points for the Vikettes, who earned a weekend split with the Thunderettes after losing Friday 54-42.

In a later game, coach Garry Taylor's UVic Vikings almost pulled a second major upset before being aced 71-70 by the UBC Thunderbirds in WCIAA men's action.

The hard-luck loss following a 75-65 setback to UBC Friday, caused a sharp dip in the Vikings' playoff chances. UVic now trails UBC and Alberta Golden Bears by four games.

Gord Hoshal tanked 20 points for the Vikings, who led 35-29 at the half before the Birds regained their hands in the second half. Trailing 69-68, with about 50 seconds left, the Vikings deliberately fouled Jack Hoy, who swished two shots. UVic couldn't reply until Mike Bishop hit a field goal with two seconds remaining.

Thomson Takes Top Event As Esquimalt Rinks Score

Home ice might have provided a bit of an edge as host rinks scored a near-sweep during finals of the seven-day, 11th annual Esquimalt Curling Club men's bonspiel on Sunday.

Topping the list of winners was Harvey Thomson of Esquimalt, who nipped Bill Page's Victoria Curling Club quartet 8-7 in the "A" event final.

Other Esquimalt winners were Ken Lawter, who tripped defending-champion Gar Taylor of VCC 7-6 in the "B" event final, and Ron Callahan, who dropped Stu Armstrong of Playlands 8-7 for "C" event laurels.

"O. J." Powell skipped the only rink to break Esquimalt domination by downing Maurice Tellier 7-5 in an all VCC "D" event final.

Prize-winning rinks:

UVic Girls Third

EDMONTON — University of British Columbia won the first-round Western Division final of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association women's volleyball championships Saturday by tripping University of Calgary Dinners three games to two.

University of Alberta Pandas defeated the University of Victoria Vikettes 16-14, 15-9, 15-13 in the battle for third place.

In the preliminary round, UVic downed University of Lethbridge and lost matches to UBC, Calgary and Alberta.

The final part of the championship, involving the same five teams, will be played Feb. 18 and 19 in Vancouver. The top two teams after that contest scheduled to meet the Eastern Division winners to decide a western representative for the national final in Sudbury, Ont., during March.

University of Manitoba Bisons captured the first round of the Eastern Division playoff at Saskatoon the same day by defeating the University of Winnipeg Wesmenettes three games to one. University of Saskatchewan Huskies placed third while Brandon University Bobbies came fourth.

That Enduring Magic Of the Silver Lining

Two men look out through the same bars:
One sees the mud, and one the stars.
—Frederick Langbridge

Our Blue Monday notes today will be entirely about the long-lost art of optimism, defined by our dictionary as "a tendency to expect the best possible outcome or to dwell upon the most hopeful aspects of a situation." So let's everybody cheer up a little, shall we?

The subject comes to mind, firstly, because we've just heard about a plan to harness the power of optimism in the cause of world peace. It is the splendid notion of one of our favorite women, Mrs. Norman Alcock, wife of the founder of the Canadian Peace Research Institute which is, itself, something of a monument to the philosophy that every cloud has its silver lining.

"Everything has been looking so gloomy of late in our various research studies," Pat Alcock writes us, "that I have decided to promote a study designed to find the hopeful signs politically in this divided world, dig them out, line them up and publicize them, so that an air of optimism might start a chain reaction to break the feeling of helplessness and hopelessness. I guess I still believe in miracles and that is what we need."

Pat's note chanced to arrive in the same mail that brought us a great, fat bundle of columns written by one Dr. Frank Crane. If that name doesn't ring a bell — and it didn't for me — it's simply because Dr. Crane was the reigning syndicated columnist of a full 50 years ago and these particular pieces have been in scrapbooks and attic trunks for a half century.

Nothing on this earth is quite so perishable as yesterday's newspaper column and Frank was not what you'd call a penetrating writer. Yet, in his day, more people read his work than any other author of the times and even today these simplistic essays reach across the years with a genuine impact. We have read them all with a professional's eye, hoping to discover the secret of their remarkable durability, and have decided that it all comes down to the man, himself.

Dr. Crane was an optimist. He was a happy man. In every word he wrote there was a contagious zest for life and for living it. He gave pleasure. He gave hope. And that, it seems clear, is a light that never dims.

In one typical piece he sums up his philosophy in one short paragraph: "I am more and more inclined to the belief that we do not emphasize enough the sheer delight of merely being alive. If we would often take stock of our little satisfactions, the unnoticed sensations of pleasure that we habitually slur over and take for granted, we would increase the average of our contentment."

The Oak Bay reader who sent me these faded clippings, a woman now in her eighties, recalls meeting Dr. Crane in 1925 on the Empress of Canada during the brief crossing from Victoria to Vancouver.

"I discovered him about seven o'clock in the morning sitting in the elegant library of the liner," she remembers. "His feet were up on a highly polished table. He was smoking a long, black cigar. His opening remarks, when I introduced myself as an avid reader, certainly bore out his own particular brand of enjoying life. 'You know,' he said, 'I shouldn't have my feet on this beautiful table and I shouldn't be smoking this cigar so early in the morning. It is all just a little bit wicked and I love it!'"

One of his most characteristic columns appeared in the Halifax Chronicle exactly 52 years ago this month. It makes a pleasant self-portrait of a man who was getting the most out of life.

"I got to thinking this morning of how many things there are in my daily experience that are agreeable," he wrote. "I was amazed at how many ways there are in which Nature contrives to make me feel good.

"For instance, to begin at the beginning of the day, I like to get up. I dearly love the first minutes of being awake. To stretch my limbs and shake off sleep, to roll out of bed and put my nose out of the window and drink in the fresh early air, and see the young sunlight, not yet glaring and hot, but full of the promise of life, a sweet light and soft, and to see the trees seeming so glad and virile — oh, it's great!

"Then there are a thousand other things I like. I like the sun and to sit in the shade, to walk and to rest afterwards. I like breathing. Did you ever stop to think how delicious air is? "I like to ride on the trolley car. I like my favorite chair. I like my pen and my pad of paper, and to see words grow under my hand. I like a good novel. I like a good road and a hedge and clumps of bushes. I like to ride in a taxicab through the crowded streets. I like to look at multitudes. And I like to be alone.

"I like walls and pavements. I like a man to talk to me as if I interested him. I like little children. I like old folks. I like big, husky workmen lifting heavy loads. I like people who get excited over purely intellectual problems. I like to make money and to spend it. I like to see young people in love.

"In short, I fear, I am a hopeless sensualist. For Stevenson's jingle grows on me: 'The world is so full of a number of things that we should all be as happy as kings.'"

It's an essay that we mean to pass along to the Alcocks and their dedicated group at the Peace Research Institute. One way to a lasting world peace could just be that reminder that it's so nice to be breathing.

LUNAR ECLIPSE early Sunday morning was captured by a University of Victoria photographer. The moon entered the earth's shadow at 1:11 a.m. and the eclipse lasted from 2:35 to 3:12 a.m., ending at 4:35 a.m. Clear skies permitted good vision of the copper-colored moon.

Hood Is Winner Of Council Seat

Alf Hood won the Victoria aldermanic byelection Saturday, pulling a small upset over Victoria Credit Bureau Manager Bob Ellis.

Ellis was the favorite before the polling, having bested Hood by 222 votes in the regular aldermanic election Dec. 11.

Hood beat Ellis by 171 votes as well as six other candidates trying for the seat left open by the death of Robert Baird Dec. 7. Hood polled 1,075.

The other losers: defeated mayoralty candidate Foster Isherwood, 553; Joyce Heynebrook, 354; Margaret Richards, 333; Sally Rogers, 293; Henry Bitterman, 150; Jim Beaubien, 129.

Voting was light at 17.13 per cent of the electorate, but heavier than the last aldermanic byelection in August, 1965, when the turnout was 13.76.

A total of 3,730 people turned out to vote and there were 28 spoiled ballots.

Hood, who ran his fourth aldermanic race Saturday, takes over the new lands and housing committee for Victoria council.

Two Persons Hurt In Separate Crashes

Hazel Titian, 553 David St. is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today with multiple injuries suffered when she was struck by a car while crossing Rock Bay near Hillside Saturday night.

Police said the car was driven by Allan McLean of 271 Beechwood. The accident occurred at 11:30 p.m.

In another accident Saturday night, Tommy Arkinstall, 8, of 242 Old Island Highway, was struck by a car while running across the highway near his home.

Driver of the car was Jack Horne of 2214 Sooke Road, Colwood.

The hospital reports the Arkinstall boy in satisfactory condition today.

Jobless Aid Urged

Changes to the B.C. Medical Services to permit the jobless to benefit from the plan, were urged Saturday by Susan Talbot, president of the Community Action Group.

She noted that people on unemployment insurance or on welfare are not eligible for medical or dental care under the plan.

"Medical care is based on the previous year's income," she pointed out. "If you receive $1,000 over your taxable amount, you must pay the maximum of $12.50 per month. When on welfare or unemployed you are not earning this amount and it's impossible to meet this commitment."

Strike Tactics Ruled Out In Hospital Union Vote

The 10,500-member Hospital Employees Union will appear before the B.C. Mediation Commission in its contract dispute with 73 hospitals.

This decision, made by the union's provincial executive Sunday, means there will be no strikes against hospitals.

It took three days of meetings to break a 7-to-7 deadlock on the executive. The decision, to appear before the commission, rather than strike, came in an 8-to-6 vote.

CABINET ORDER

Almost two weeks ago, the B.C. cabinet ordered compulsory arbitration by the commission of the contract dispute and also ordered that no strikes take place. Despite this, Vancouver General Hospital employees last Thursday voted 94 per cent in favor of a strike.

Bill Rolfe, director of technical services for the union, said today the decision was made "only after very serious consideration of the other alternatives — illegal strike or not appearing before the commission."

He said the "obvious reason" for not striking is because "all it would show is

Victoria Times

MONDAY, JAN. 31, 1972.

SECOND SECTION

the ability of a union to cripple a hospital. We are very sensitive to this. We must act responsibly. The decision not to strike was made because of the very serious consequences and the fact it would do little to remedy the basic problem. A strike in the hospital industry won't change the government."

MOST UNETHICAL

Rolfe criticized the Registered Nurses Association of

B.C., which voluntarily agreed to go before the commission, for using Hospital Employees Union wage classifications to argue the case for more pay for professional nurses.

"It is most inappropriate and unethical for one union to make a comparison with another in the same industry," he said.

He said in such a case a union should demonstrate that the general level of wages should be adjusted.

POOR COMPARISON

"The RNAs chose to tear down other people who work in the same industry. Basically, they compared nurses aides, practical nurses and orderlies and in terms of their own education and profession, they said they required a very substantial increase to get themselves in line with these people.

"They implied these other people should mark time," Rolfe said. Negotiations between both HEU and the RNABC and the B.C. Hospitals Association broke down in December after the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, the government agency which pays hospital operating costs, announced a ceiling of 6.5 per cent in wages and fringe benefits in 1972 hospital budgets.

The Hospital Employees Union was seeking a 25 per cent raise over two years. Half its members earn between $406 and $433 a month.

The RNABC has sought two 10 per cent raises over two years. Its members start at $590 a month rising to $740 a month after six years.

Victoria hospitals involved in the contract dispute are St. Joseph's, where employees had voted in favor of a strike, Priory, Jubilee, St. Mary's, Royal, Mount St. Mary and Queen Alexandra's Solarium.

City Eyes Short-Term Bonds

The city of Victoria is planning to take advantage of a hungry short-term bond market to pay for its capital works projects.

City hall has asked investment houses to come forward with proposals for financing $850,000 in debentures which would mature in 1976 or 1977.

The city will be able to pay off the short-term bonds because by the time they mature, the city's long-term debt payments will have been drastically reduced.

will fall from $1,247,000 in 1975 to $602,000 in 1978.

The $850,000 is for the remaining commitments from the city's first capital budget.

The idea of the new departure, believed by city officials to be the first of its kind in the province, is to capitalize on the low rates of interest available in short-term money.

Savings money in all types of financial houses has been accumulating during a period when business is not expanding at a sufficient rate to use up the funds.

Thus the houses are eager to handle short-term debentures at favorable interest rates.

Besides the new departure in using short-term financing for capital works, which has been approved by the provincial government, the city also plans to increase its savings by allowing the financial houses to write the terms of the bond issues.

Normally the city writes all the terms of the package into a bylaw which it must pass in council before going to the money market.

If the new system works, the houses will come to the city with specific proposals.

treasurer Jim Bramley said in a report on the proposal.

An indication of the success of the new system has been given, with firm offers already received from two institutions.

Deadline for proposals on the $850,000 issue is 4:30 p.m. Feb. 8.

Engineers Protest With Pickets

Fifty pickets were outside the Parliament Buildings today protesting proposed changes in the law over boilers in buildings.

A busload of stationary engineers came from Vancouver this morning and were augmented by local engineers. The government has announced a new Safety Engineering Services Act.

NO DETAILS

However, no details of the changes have been made public and a bill has not been presented to the legislature.

The proposed act was mentioned in the government's throne speech, where it was said the new act would incorporate safety provisions of several acts, primarily boiler, gas and electrical inspection.

The picketing, which was also staged last Friday outside the provincial boiler inspection office in Vancouver, was organized by the Engineers Joint Council, which represents stationary engineers in several organizations.

Council chairman Bob Berger, an official of the Service Employees International Union, said the new act has been drawn up in "complete secrecy." Neither employers nor engineers were consulted, he said.

While the government has announced no details, Berger said it has been indicated that operation of a boiler by an engineer will not be compulsory if the boiler is of less than 75 horsepower. Current limit is 50 horsepower.

Berger said the engineers want to know why the government plans a new act when it

takes four years. The recommended salary scale published by the British Columbia Pharmaceutical Society is $9,073 per year, with one year's experience; $10,510 per year with three years. However, the salaries vary from province to province. For example, in Ontario the salary with one year's experience is $12,000 yearly.

A Tale to Warm The Cold Weather

It's whimsical weather, said the voice on the telephone. "Can't you do something about it?"

I confessed that whimsical was not the word I would have used in describing the weather. Also that as I was not an Allan McQuarrie nor a Bob Fortune I couldn't do anything about it.

However, I did suggest that I might be able to lighten the feeling of frustration and boredom generated by the present vagaries of our banana belt, by telling a story to-night that contains more than a little whimsy.

It happened in Vancouver about a month ago when I was staying with a sister-in-law, in her apartment out toward University of British Columbia.

The weather was bitterly cold. Lots of snow on the ground. The temperature at breakfast time that particular morning was crowding the freezing point.

Three Joined

From the apartment windows we could look down to a corner of the street where three one-storey cottages (vintage several decades back) had been joined to form what today we would call a triplex.

Each cottage had its own chimney. We decided these must lead down to fireplaces or perhaps to those central heaters so much a part of house plans 30 or 40 years ago.

We envisioned the warmth fireplaces or circulating heaters would bring to the small cottages. And we remembered how either one could be banked last thing before going to bed so heat would come from the embers throughout the night.

Suddenly we were aware that a bird had settled on the edge of the chimney nearest our windows.

Chimney Warmth

Immediately my sister-in-law, who is an avid bird watcher, made a dash for the field glasses. "There must be some warmth coming from that chimney," she guessed. "Let's see what happens."

The bird sat for a second or so, hunched down in its feathers; cold, miserable and hungry.

Then, gradually, it began to move. Its head came up. The fluffed-out feathers subsided. Finally it turned so its tail was toward the chimney vent where we judged there was warmth coming from below.

It wiggled that tail. Lifted its wings. Teetered back and forth on the edge of the chimney and generally gave every appearance of thoroughly enjoying the experience.

Just like any human might react if standing with back to a fireplace on a bitterly cold winter morning.

In a minute or so the bird took off for the next chimney where the performance was repeated. Then on to the next.

Smoke Curled

By now smoke was beginning to curl up from all three chimneys as fires were re-fuelled in the cottages. That was the signal to leave.

The bird was no longer cold. It had lost its miserable look. And by the way it flipped off toward trees on the far side of the road it would soon find its breakfast.

A-starting, my sister-in-law said in answer to my question as to species. The common, ordinary variety of starling that now over-runs Vancouver and that has invaded Victoria in the past decade or so.

A longer, too, for not one of its clan joined in the chimney ritual. At the same time — "a pretty smart fellow!"

Stimulation of Scalp Gives Fine Head of Hair

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
(Special to the Times)

What's the news from the battlefield? Have you routed some overweight pounds and are the bulges retreating? If you have been following Bip for three weeks, I know you are having a happy little preview of things to come.

You are probably still far from your goal, but I am sure you have reason to be encouraged.

This is the fourth week of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan. I have brought you information about diet and exercise and care of your complexion during the past three weeks. It is now time to think about your topknot. You should surely give your hair special attention, too, because my Beauty Improvement Plan is designed to make you lovely from head to toe.

That magic "100 strokes" a day is not always the blessing it is supposed to be. It depends on the condition of your hair. It can be harmful. Dermatologists warn against brushing the hair any more than absolutely necessary, or shampooing it vigorously if it is thinning.

It is important to stimulate circulation in the scalp, but only with massage, properly done. A quickie review: spread your fingers over your scalp and rotate your hands, keeping your fingers in place. Repeat this until you have massaged your whole head.

The diet and exercise program you are following will greatly benefit your hair. However, local treatments are also helpful, such as the "massage" I have mentioned, which does not pull the hair but increases circulation. How often you shampoo your hair is also important.

If it is oily shampoo as often as necessary to keep it clean and not dripping with oil.

If it is oily shampoo as often as necessary to keep it clean and not dripping with oil. This may mean several times a week for some women. If your tresses are dry, once every 10 days is best. You will find cream rinses and shampoos very beneficial. There are also pomades especially formulated for dry ends.

Remember that your hair is a living part of you (that part underneath the scalp). It depends on your blood stream for nourishment and reflects your state of health. Give it some tender care during this important eight weeks.

If you have missed part of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan or would like to have the complete course to refer to you may want my Bip Kit. It has all of the information and direction you need to lose from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks and become a more attractive you. If you would like to have this kit send 50 cents (includes postage and handling) and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Ruling Is Victory Against Abortion

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court decision blocking an abortion that had been approved by a hospital committee has given the anti-abortion movement its first important victory since the fight began in 1966.

The decision may lead to other injunctions that, if granted, would in effect scuttle the 1969 federal law and perhaps make abortion possible only where a direct threat to the mother's life is involved.

A series of courtroom tests are expected to spring from the decision, the ramifications of which are still unclear to authorities.

An appeal of the decision is unlikely as it wasn't opposed by the parties directly involved and it is a civil case. However, federal and Ontario authorities are studying it and a reference to a higher court is a possibility.

The Riverside Hospital Jan. 18 approved an abortion for the western Quebec woman, whose husband had opposed it since she became pregnant.

He went to court last Tuesday and got an interim injunction preventing the hospital from carrying out the abortion as scheduled last Wednesday.

But the hospital already had cancelled the operation on the advice of the woman's doctor, Andrew Fuzi. And the woman apparently had become reconciled to having the baby.

APPLIED TO WOMAN
The Canadian Press erroneously reported Thursday that the court injunction was a permanent one and applied to the doctors in the case.

It was learned later that it applied only to the woman, who did not oppose the injunction, and that it applied until a trial occurs. A trial is unlikely and the injunction is likely to become void with the birth of the baby.

The application for a "perpetual injunction" went to court Wednesday, unopposed. Mr. Justice Abraham Lefebvre lifted the injunction against the hospital and two doctors in the case but continued it against the woman.

The application was brought by the husband on behalf of himself and the 16-week-old fetus, referred to by the judge as the "infant plaintiff."

This was interpreted unofficially as a recognition that a fetus is a living human being at 16 weeks, with the right to life.

Officially authorities said a binding precedent hasn't been set and the case cannot be considered a test case because the injunction was not tested by opposition.

The 1969 abortion law doesn't require a husband's consent when a wife wants an abortion. However, the case here opens an avenue for husbands, and perhaps other parties, to block abortions through injunctions.

OPOSES DECISION
"We are afraid this will set a precedent whereby any husband, even if he is mentally unstable, could force a woman to have a child," Lore Perron, director of the Association for Review of Canadian Abortion Law, said Friday.

Other pro-abortion groups said the decision makes a farce of federal law.

Mrs. Perron said AICAL may try to mount a test case. Meanwhile, anti-abortionists hailed the decision.

"Any move that will prevent the destruction of an innocent human being is a move in the right direction," Dr. Heather Morris of Toronto, president of the Alliance for Life, commented.

Both AICAL and the Alliance for Life were involved in the case that began last fall, when the woman apparently was unable to get an abortion at Ottawa Civic Hospital. The hospital has stopped dealing with applications from women in Quebec because of a schedule already overloaded with applications from eastern Ontario.

Dr. Fuzi, the family doctor, suggested that the woman go to New York state to have the abortion and an AICAL spokesman said the association arranged to have a New York City clinic do the operation.

The husband, in an affidavit, said he disagreed with Dr. Fuzi, who then told him the abortion was necessary because the woman's life was in danger and an abnormal child might be born.

The husband said he agreed to take his wife to New York but only to get her to Montreal first, where he had made an appointment with Dr. Bernard Laramee, the family doctor when they lived in Montreal.

Dr. Laramee recommended rest and prescribed medicine, the husband said. The couple returned to Ottawa without going to New York.

Dr. Fuzi was "furious" on hearing of Dr. Laramee's intervention, the husband said, and persuaded the woman to apply for an abortion at the Riverside Hospital.

After the application was approved, the husband went after the injunction to block it. Lawyer David Dehler, 35, who has been connected with the Alliance for Life movement, handled the case.

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

SHE'S AGAINST WOMEN'S LIB

DALLAS (UPI) — Jacquie Davison, a pretty blonde, is fighting against equal rights for women because "they'll have to take a step down off their pedestal to be equal with men."

Mrs. Davison, 34, and the mother of seven, is president of "I Know How — Happiness of Womanhood." She said the organization has 3,000 members in 47 states officially, "but most women feel the same way."

"We're waging a letter lobby against the equal rights for women bill," said Mrs. Davison, the wife of a Kingman, Ariz., chiropractor.

She opposed the equal-rights for women amendment because she believes it may lead to women assuming men's roles and to such things as women being drafted.

"War is man's preoccupation," she said, "batting her brown eyelashes at one of the TV newsmen who came to cover her news conference, one of many she plans across the United States."

"Men have always been the protectors of women and children and I think they should stay that way. Women have a grave responsibility in the home when men are drafted. Instead of being drafted themselves, girls should be at home learning to be good wives and mothers," she said.

Besides, "the female draft might lead to compulsory birth control in the country because lots of girls might get pregnant to avoid being drafted."

Mrs. Davison said that she was divorced after her first marriage and went to work as a waitress to support her four children. She was a chiropractic assistant for her second husband until three years ago when she quit to stay home full time.

Despite her working experience, she is against day care centres to help career mothers.

"They might control the child's entire growth and development. Our little children would grow up to be good little whatever-the-government-wants-them-to-be's," she said.

Women Are Beginning to Test Laws Against Discrimination

Almost everywhere in Canada there are laws prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex, some of them new.

How effective they are is open to question. In most cases they have never been tested until the last year. Then, in a few areas of the country, women began to challenge employers, unions and associations to obtain the equality of treatment the laws say they should have. They have had varying degrees of success.

Ontario has the most comprehensive legislation, in effect since December, 1970. The Women's Equal Opportunity Act prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. It also bans refusal to hire, train, promote or transfer an employee on that basis. It prohibits the classification of jobs by sex and dismissal for that reason.

The act is administered by the women's bureau of the department of labor, directed by Dr. Lita-Rose Betcheman.

"We've had almost 2,500 inquiries since we began and 274 complaints, both formal and informal," she said.

Most Complaints

Most complaints had been about job classification, with hiring and dismissal and promotion ranking second and third.

She said the male-female distinctions are sometimes written into union contracts, sometimes tacitly accepted by employers and employees. She said the bureau's inspectors have usually had cooperation when they worked through an industry to have such distinctions erased.

"We do accept patterns of discrimination as evidence, otherwise we would never get anywhere. And we advise companies to do this kind of occupation survey themselves before there is action."

"Our officers report a dramatic change in attitude, and it's not always easy to revise attitudes. It makes me think public opinion has been moving in this direction before we had the legislation, though the legislation gave a good push to attitudes."

Ontario's equal-pay law is administered by the labor standards branch. Under it, since 1969, the responsibility for equal-pay standards has been the government's, so that the heat has been taken off an employee making a complaint.

Human Rights

Working women have made use of Manitoba's Human Rights Commission since it opened in March, 1971. Carol Fogel, one of its officers, said 70 to 80 per cent of the complaints brought before it have dealt with sex discrimination in employment. Fewer than 20 per cent of the complaints have been made by men. There are at present about 75 cases on the active list.

One was a job-classification complaint against a bakery in which the union involved was also charged with tacit support of the company's ruling.

Alberta's present government has promised a new bill of rights to go beyond existing laws.

Irene MacGregor, women's bureau director, said Alberta's present equal-pay law requires the employee to lay a complaint, which most are reluctant to do. There have been six complaints since January 1971, two of them ruled as justified.

Research Needed

Keith Henders, director of the human rights branch, said they have investigated 10 complaints of sex discrimination since July. He said he would like to see research done on the subject of discrimination against women in Canada.

A current situation in Alberta raises questions about how to deal with sex discrimination in trade and professional organizations that can affect members' employment.

Trudy Kerr has applied for membership in the all-female Canadian Association of Petroleum Landmen. She said it is as natural a move as a woman doctor wanting to join the Canadian Medical Association.

Jim O'Byrne, association president, said she isn't qualified, but then added that the membership isn't ready to admit women.

In a situation apart from job discrimination, a 22-year-old Montreal girl complained to the Quebec Civil Liberties Union that she has had trouble getting an apartment. Landlords have told her she would have parties and entertain men. The union said the law cannot help.

A spokesman said the union is trying to get a provincial civil rights bill, which he said they were promised two years ago.

Code Unused

Prince Edward Island has a human rights code that includes sex discrimination, but Arthur McGuigan, deputy justice minister, said he knows of no case of anyone trying to make use of it.

In Nova Scotia, Inna MacLeod, deputy attorney-general, said sex discrimination is covered by the Human Rights and Equal Pay Acts and he knew of no pressure for changes.

Gail Mason, the provincial human rights commissioner, said the commission is studying the issue and intends to submit proposals for legislation in the next few months.

She said the Provincial Council of Women has asked for changes, and there have been individual complaints to her office about work practices and the minimum wage law.

Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia all have provincial minimum wages that are higher for men than for women. Nova Scotia's will change and become the same in July.

Prohibits Bias

Newfoundland and New Brunswick have both recently passed human rights legislation that prohibits sex discrimination.

In British Columbia, John Sherlock, director under the Human Rights Act, said they have had no problems with job discrimination there and no real pressure to change the legislation.

Joan Wallace recently told a B.C. Women's Liberal Association meeting that women must press for legislation to include penalties and allow for investigation of complaints without compromising the complainant.

Mrs. Wallace is president of the Status of Women Action and Co-ordinating Council of B.C.

Only in Saskatchewan does the deputy attorney-general say there are no laws to cover sex discrimination.

Day Care Workers Bid For Union

Day care workers at 35 centres in Vancouver have applied to become Local 2 of the Social Services Employees Union of B.C., president John Shields of Victoria said today.

The union now represents all employees of Family and Children's Service and is negotiating a first contract with the agency.

Shields said about 150 day care workers are involved. They are members of the Day Care Workers Association of Greater Vancouver, and work at both profit and non-profit centres.

"Their main concern is salaries," he said.

A survey had shown that many of the day care workers are earning less than the federal poverty level of $4,000 a year for the head of a household.

Shields said salaries start at $300 a month and work up to $400 or $450 a month, and these figures include supervisors.

He said day care workers were also concerned at "discriminatory attitudes" towards women, feeling salaries are low because the employees are women.

Rolling Library Ladder Beats Book Problem

By PAULINE GRAVES

Books add color and character to any room. They evidence homeowners' interest in far ranging subjects, or a knowledge in depth of one or two subjects, indicated by the size of the collection.

But with a quantity, the homeowner has the problem of keeping the books at hand. Floor-to-ceiling shelves give the answer, of course, but those on the top shelf receive short shrift because of their inaccessibility.

They also get very dusty.

Bookstores and some libraries have the answer, a rolling ladder. And here is the same answer in a home.

At the ladder top, on each upright, two rollers travel in grooves along an extension of the top shelf. Depth of the grooves prevents the rollers from slipping off. Casters at the ladder's base provide easy motion, but note that instead of the usual installation at the bottom of the legs, the casters are at the sides, in metal cages.

This not only gives the ladder greater stability, but assures the casters a sideways movement.

Because the ladder is attached to the shelves, it can stand only slightly angled; and consequently occupies a minimum of floor space. The legs are out of the way, too.

In addition to storing books, the shelves feature a display of toy soldiers, protected from dust and from careless handling by sliding glass panels.

Even publications on top shelves are available now.

People Important

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to save their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Why? Faithful Reader.

DEAR READER: Because I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And in some cases, in an effort to save the marriage, people have destroyed themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Our 7-year-old printed the following letter to Santa: "Dear Santa, all I want for Christmas is for my mommy to quit smoking because I love her very much and don't want her to die. If you bought more toys for me please give them to some other little boy because all I want is a Mommy who doesn't cough anymore, and doesn't get nervous when she can't find a cigarette butt. Thank You, Billy."

His Mommy cried when she read it. But she's still smoking. Sign me "Billy's father," or more appropriately—Disgusted.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Mommy's hooked. If she really wants to kick the habit, she can, but she'll need encouragement and understanding, not contempt.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and I have four big problems. A big nose; two big ears that stick out, and hair that is very thin.

I like to wear my hair straight and plain, but I have to keep brushing it all the time because if I don't, my ears stick out.

I am very self-conscious about my nose, too, especially with these big ears of mine. Can you help me, Abby? I hope so because the rest of me is okay. — Funny-Looking Girl.

DEAR GIRL: Excessive brushing makes hair oily, so easy with the hairbrush. Also, if your hair had some curl in it, it wouldn't be so "thin" and your ears wouldn't stick out.

In a few years you can put your nose (and possibly your ears, too) in the hands of a plastic surgeon, so cheer up, Honey.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from a nosy neighbor who wants to know if it's normal for a boy who's in the 8th grade to kiss his mother goodbye every morning, sounds like my neighbor. Please inform her that all my sons, ranging in age from 5 to 21, kiss me goodbye in the morning. I'm sure I don't know where they get such "abnormal" ideas. From their father, I guess, who's been doing it for 22 years. — Lucky.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Men Must Conquer Fear

WINNIPEG (CP) — Equality between the sexes will come about only when men stop fearing the feminine and acknowledge that both sexes share similar characteristics.

That's the opinion of Penelope Washburn of Wooster College in Ohio who said: "We have split the human personality into two separate entities, labelling one masculine and the other feminine, attributing certain characteristics to each."

She said the feminine is the irrational, that which cannot be controlled, a category into which both death and emotions also fall.

"Our Western society fears both these because we are unable to control them. And so we suppress them," a move that led to the suppression of the female.

"You see this in the lack of women as leaders in religious life."

President Elected

EDMONTON (CP) — Bob Sewell, a 46-year-old Edmonton businessman, has been elected president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Alberta.

Elected Saturday during the party's annual convention, he succeeds Roy Watson of Edmonton who was instrumental in the party's victory in the provincial election last August.

Lillian Knapp of High River was elected woman's president of the association at the annual convention.

Remedial Teacher Mrs. Allison Saba holds children with learning problems.

Travelling Remedial Teacher Speeds Process of Learning

Times Staff

COBBLE HILL — A travelling remedial teacher in the southern portion of the Cowichan School District is so successful that school authorities are considering establishing a second teacher within the month.

Director of elementary instruction Bob Moss said the pilot program, which was just instituted at Cobble Hill, Shawnigan Lake and Mill Bay schools in September, is "proving to be extremely effective. We are seeing mainly two gains. The children are making excellent progress and they are not having to travel away from their base."

EXTRA ASSISTANCE
Moss explained that for many years the school district has had specialized classes but until now students requiring the extra assistance were bused into Alexander Elementary School at Duncan where remedial classes have been established.

"This usually means the student is absent from his base school and friends for a year and his school day is increased about two hours through time spent on the bus."

Since remedial teacher Allison Saba has begun visiting the students, authorities have found the student benefits because he remains with his school and friends. The teacher who discovered the learning disability and Mrs. Saba are able to synchronize their teaching methods and he may progress successfully enough to discontinue the special classes before the year ends.

MACLEOD... fantastic effect

SIMILAR SYSTEM

"We hope to expand the service next year and set up a similar system in the northern part of the school district," Moss said.

He added that the remedial classes in Alexander School will continue but will be comprised mainly of Duncan area kids.

"A remedial child is a capable student who has developed some learning problem that could have resulted from a number of causes," explained Mrs. Saba, who taught for two years in a reading lab at Dawson Creek before coming to Duncan in September.

"When a child falls behind in his ability to read and do written work his problem is referred to the remedial teacher," she said. "He is usually about a year behind classmates."

First Mrs. Saba will test the student for his reading level and potential. "If he is working below his potential he is a good candidate," she added.

After screening the student in an attempt to discover what is causing his learning problem, Mrs. Saba often refers him to the Cowichan testing specialist, Art Gracia, who will then come back to her with specific instructions for helping the student.

EXPERIMENTAL STAGE

Currently Mrs. Saba has 42 students in grades 1 to 7 that she works with in the northern area.

She is at Bench and Mill Bay elementary schools three

half-days weekly and at the remaining three elementary schools for two half-days.

During this time she concentrates on language arts, speaking, listening, writing and reading "where most of the difficulties arise" with the students.

With the program still being in the experimental stages, Mrs. Saba teaches in staff rooms, classrooms in basements and even cloakrooms.

She claims the most ideal and efficient method of conducting her remedial work would be to have a travelling classroom on a "small bus-like vehicle."

"Schools are not set up for remedial classes. Most students have auditory problems and are distracted by noises," she emphasized.

TURNING ON

Mrs. Saba looks upon her job as preventive social work. "A child not being successful in school soon learns to turn off. It is important to get to him before he turns off if possible or turn him back on at an early age," she said. "Children with learning difficulties can carry this over to other areas such as social behavior."

Mrs. Saba says she finds her work rewarding but it has many frustrations and requires continued patience and a never-give-up attitude.

Pilot Dies in Crash

Peter Davis, 25, of Fort St. James, B.C., died Saturday in the crash of a single-engine plane in northern British Columbia.

The plane, a Beaver owned by Northern Thunderbird Airlines of Prince George, disappeared on a 100-mile flight from Prince George to Robb Lake north of Mackenzie.

A Buffalo aircraft from CFB Comox spotted the downed plane about 10:40

a.m. Sunday 15 miles south of the lake. An NTA helicopter was used to retrieve Davis' body.

A crash-locating signal device aboard the Beaver helped the search planes locate it.

Guest Director,
Orchestra ShineBy AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Nothing is more revealing
of the absolute quality of an orchestra than the presence on the podium of a guest conductor.

There is wide scope in music for individuality among artists and the differences,
both subtle and distinctive,
between two fine conductors
can be numerous.

To meet the challenge successfully the orchestra must be flexible and at the same time thoroughly disciplined,
alert and responsive.

For the current pair of concerts (Sunday and tonight at 8:30) Victoria-Symphony Orchestra is conducted by Simon
Streitfeld, the youthful acting and associate conductor of Vancouver Symphony.

And to further stiffen the challenge, the program
Streitfeld has chosen is far from simple.

EXOTIC TREATMENT
From the complex brass
and percussion writing of Malcolm Arnold's English
Dances to its exacting virtosity of the Dvorak D Major Symphony finale, the difficulties are many.

But Sunday's performance
made small issue of the problems. It soared confidently, was full of pleasure and a stimulation that bordered at times on excitement.

Streitfeld is an intense,
virile conductor. He drives his musical forces with determination and is at his most interesting when he is devel-

ing mighty climaxes and shaping long, looping phrases in an urgent forward movement.

His understanding of the idiom of Arnold's two sets of dances is lively and exact and while the Benjamin Britten Sea Interludes lacked atmosphere somewhat, they were meticulously developed in texture and the moulding of phrase.

Beautiful attack and tone in the brass section and, notably, security in the horns were outstanding in the dances.

The measure of the orchestra's strings was taken to the full in Vaughan-Williams' superb Fantasia on a theme of Thomas Tallis.

TONES RICH

Regarded as a masterpiece
for the string choir it is written for double string orchestra and quartet.

The Victoria Orchestra's
performance demonstrated an excellent discipline, and an increasing vitality and richness
of tone to charm the ear.

This discipline, precision and vitality were also noticeable in big, brilliant, glowingly
poetic Dvorak Symphony.
Streitfeld made extensive demands on his musicians in long passages of sustained passion and frenetic crescendos.

But the orchestra never disappointed him. Alert, assured and enduring in vigor, both ensemble and conductor fully earned the ovation awarded them at the conclusion.

4,000 Bengalis
Believed Buried

COMILLA (Reuter) — Between 3,000 and 4,000 bodies of Bengalis killed by the Pakistani army are believed to be buried in and around Comilla garrison, 100 miles east of Dacca in Bangladesh, a police officer said.

Sub-Inspector Fazlur Rahaman, in charge of the investigation, said Sunday night 700 bodies have been found in less than a week.

Digging is continuing and at least 3,000 and perhaps as many as 4,000 bodies are expected to be found, he said.

BYLAW

BUDGET BYLAW No. 5

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 84

(VANCOUVER ISLAND WEST)

A Bylaw to authorize the Board of School Trustees of School District No. 84 (Vancouver Island West) to provide, in addition to 110 per centum of the basic education program, the amount $4,201,208.00 for the year 1972.

WHEREAS the amount equal to 110 per centum of the amount of the cost of the basic education program for 1972 as notified to the Board under Section 197 (2) of the Public Schools Act is $705,591.00;

AND WHEREAS the Board deems it necessary pursuant to the provisions of Section 197 (4) (A) of the Public Schools Act to provide for the additional amount of $3,495,617.00 for operating expenses in the 1972 budget of the Board, amount of $3,495,617.00;

AND WHEREAS the gross total amount for operating expenses included in the 1972 budget of the Board is $1,096,598.00;

NOW THEREFORE the Board of School Trustees of School District No. 84
(Vancouver Island West) enacts as follows:

1. That for the year 1972 the annual operating budget of the Board shall include, in addition to the 110 per centum of the Basic Education Program as notified to the Board under Section 197 (2) of the Public Schools Act, the amount of $3,495,617.00.

2. This Bylaw may be cited for all purposes as "School District No. 84 (Vancouver Island West) Budget Bylaw No. 5 and in all respects in accordance with the provisions of the Public Schools Act.

Read a first, second and third time the 26th day of January, 1972.
Reconsidered, finally passed and adopted the 26th day of January, 1972.

Lions Plan
To Increase Ticket Prices

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wes
Munsie, president of British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, has announced there likely will be an increase in ticket prices for Lions' games at Empire
Stadium this season.

Munsie said in an interview
"we have the matter of an increase in ticket prices under consideration."

Last season, ticket prices were $5.50, $4 and $3. The Lions last raised ticket prices
in 1966 when top-priced seats were increased by 50 cents.

An increase would make the Lions the third CFL club to raise prices. Montreal
Alouettes increased their top price to $9 from $6.50, and Saskatchewan Roughriders
announced ticket prices at Regina's Taylor Field would be increased this year.

Island Teams

Lead Tourney

NORTH VANCOUVER —
Campbell River stopped Victoria High 37-28 to win the eight-team-Norsemen girls' senior high school basketball tournament.

Reynolds of Victoria hampered Windsor of North Vancouver 39-17 to take third place for a Vancouver Island sweep of the top three positions.

Windsor finished fourth and Garibaldi, Pemberton, North Van and Howe Sound rounded out the standings in that order.

DERBY ENTRY

FROM CALGARY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —
A Canadian horse is the first to be nominated for the 1973
Kentucky Derby at Churchill
Downs.

A nominating form, together with a cheque for $100 came from K. O. Foville of Calgary, making it official for Harry the Great, a non-starting son of Crozier.

Nominations for the derby will close Feb. 15. The 98th derby, with $125,000 added,
will be run at the Downs in May.

SUPER BOWL

TOPS ON TV

NEW YORK (AP) — The
Super Bowl football game between Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins was watched
on television by more viewers than any other sports event in history, CBS-TV has announced.

The network said the national Nielsen ratings showed that the Super Bowl was seen in 20,450,000 homes by an estimated 65 million viewers and attracted 74 per cent of all those watching television at the time.

Beavers Acquire

New Field Boss

PORTLAND, ORE. (AP) —
Ray Hathaway is the new field manager for the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League.

Hathaway, 55, who played
two seasons with the parent
Cleveland Indians, was formerly a manager at Jacksonville, Fla.

Thunderettes

Defeat Pipers

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia
Thunderettes defeated Seattle
Sandpipers 48-42 Sunday in an Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Basketball League game.

Terry McGovern-paced UBC
with 14 points.

Oregon Runner

Laps Jim Ryun

PORTLAND (AP) — Steve Pagetlaine, lapped Jim Ryun and won the two-mile in the fastest time of the indoor track season at the Oregon indoor track and field meet Saturday night. Prefontaine, 21-year-old junior at the University of Oregon, was clocked at 8:26.5, only four-tenths of a second over the American record held by Frank Shorter.

Americans Lose

To Czech Squad

TOKYO (Reuter) — Cze-choslovakia's Olympic hockey team defeated the United States 4-1 Saturday on the second day of a six-nation
hockey tournament here.

Poland beat Switzerland, 8-4 in another match of the four-day meeting. The third and fourth-day matches are scheduled for Feb. 15 and 16, after
the Sapporo Winter Olympics.

Pact's Proposals On Old Ground

MOSCOW (WP) — The
Warsaw Pact's new declaration on a European security conference and troop reductions in Europe "has advanced absolutely nothing," in the view of senior western diplomats here.

These diplomats expressed bafflement as to why the senior Communist party leaders
of all the Warsaw Pact nations met at this time only to reiterate old positions. They speculated that the talks may have covered subjects now
mentioned in the communique, such as China.

Meeting in Prague last Tuesday and Wednesday, the leaders of all the Warsaw Pact powers proposed seven points that could be taken up at a European security conference.

These points contained
"nothing new," western diplomats have decided after studying them.

The Communist nations also used some new language regarding the possibility of talks
on troop reductions in Europe.
First, they said in their Wednesday communique that troop reductions would involve "both foreign and national" forces, which has always been the western position.

The phrase covers the possibility, for example, that reductions of both Soviet and
East German forces in East
Germany might be negotiable
in return for a reduction of

U.S. and British forces in West Germany.

"This is nothing different than what they have already told us privately," a western diplomat said. However, it was the first occasion that the Communists used the "foreign and national" formulation in a public document.

The second substantive reference to talks on troop reductions in the Prague communique said such talks
"should not be the prerogative of the existing military-political alliances in Europe."

That seemed to be a rejection of the western position.
The NATO countries (except France) have been trying to work together to explore the possibility of troop reductions talks with the Russians. They have named Manlio Brosio,
NATO's former secretary general, as their envoy for this purpose.

However, the Russians have shown absolutely no interest in inviting Brosio to Moscow,
and the Prague communique appeared to rule out any future invitation. Other NATO diplomats say they believe the Brosio mission is dead.

The whole question seems highly problematical at the moment, since all diplomatic movements in Europe are at a standstill pending final ratification of the West German treaties with Poland and the Soviet Union, and the various big four and inter-German agreements on West Berlin.
The Russians have insisted on completion of all these in advance of further diplomatic activity, in the view of the NATO countries.

Hold Back on Pruning Until Damage Certain

Hold the pruning secateurs and the axe! The extent of permanent harm to our garden plants by the recent cold spell cannot be known until summer.

Meanwhile we hope that roots and lower stems of even the more tender shrubs are unharmed.

It is the evergreen kinds which look so miserable in cold weather. Camellias look sort of yellowish, rhododendrons drooping leaves towards, and laurels and laurustinus appear depressed.

These disfigurements usually turn out to be temporary. This cause is not so much the low temperatures (10 to 15 deg. F. locally), as the effect of low humidity withdrawing moisture from the broad leaves while the roots in cold soil were unable to replace the supply.

As snowfall, or rain, raises the humidity level, and thermometer readings at the same time, we shall see at least a partial recovery in appearance.

Our general advice now is that no matter how disfigured your plants appear, don't do any cutting or pruning at this time.

So frequently in past years of similar experience here on the coast we have found that although broadleaved evergreen shrubs might ultimately lose their leaves, growth buds were unharmed and made progress by late spring.

Flower buds which formed last year on early species and varieties of camellias and rhododendrons, may have been harmed where most exposed to both low temperature and drying air. These may drop.

We have to take the proportion of good winters and balance them against the (usually) short periods of hard weather we get during one winter. The temptation to grow borderline-hardy shrubs and trees is very great, so we enjoy them in the years we succeed with them.

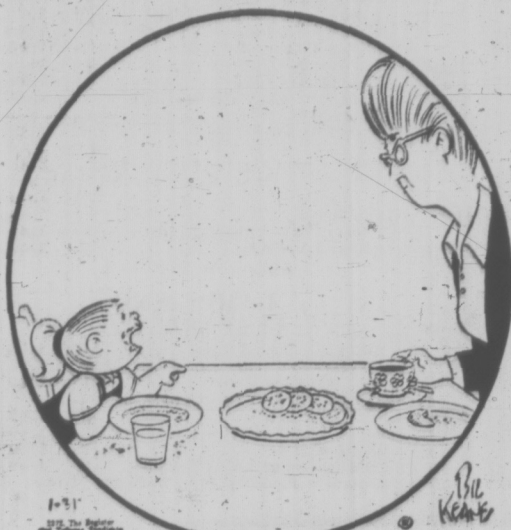

Every few years, one is permanently damaged down to ground level, but if protective material of burlap, dry leaves or evergreen boughs has been placed over the crown as suggested way back in November, new growth has a chance to appear in late spring.

This is another reason we say to gardeners not to destroy any plant until it is proved without doubt as being lifeless.

Coniferous evergreens are in some winters permanently disfigured, but even these should be left until early summer before a decision is reached to remove them.

This winter is just another lesson on taking advantage of the micro climate within a garden when planting our less winter-hardy shrubs and trees.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

by FRED KARPIN

If a title were required for today's deal, a fitting one would be "finesses, finesses everywhere, but not a one to take." Unfortunately, however, when the deal arose in a recent non-expert game, there was nobody around to tell our South declarer what the theme of the deal was. As a result, he succumbed to a couple of finesses, thereby losing a makable game contract.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 Pass 3 Pass
4 Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of 9.

West's jack of hearts opening lead was captured by South's ace, after which the queen and ace of trumps gathered in the outstanding pieces. Declarer next led a club off the board, and finessed his queen. Upon winning the trick with his king, West returned a club to South's ace.

Hoping that West possessed the diamond ten, declarer now led the five of diamonds and inserted dummy's nine after West followed suit with the four of diamonds. Had the diamond ten been in the West hand, the nine would have been captured by the ace or king; and it would then have become a routine matter to create a winner out of the queen or jack of diamonds.

But, as can be observed, dummy's nine was taken by East's ten. And eventually declarer lost two more diamond tricks, thus incurring a one-trick defeat. In taking his two finesses, declarer misplayed the hand.

After picking up the outstanding trumps, declarer should have cashed the king and queen of hearts, thereby eliminating that suit from both the North and South hands. Then would come the ace of clubs, and this would be followed by the club queen. The club suit would now be eliminated from both hands.

Whichever defender won this trick with the king of clubs (West, in the actual set-up) would now become the victim of an end-play. If he returned either a heart or a club, declarer would ruff it in dummy while simultaneously discarding the five of diamonds from the South hand.

In the actual deal, West would be "forced" to lead a diamond, upon which dummy's three-spot would be played. East would win this trick with his ace—and with both the queen and jack of diamonds still remaining in the North-South hands, declarer would have himself a diamond trick by driving out West's king of diamonds.

Ran picked up his money. "Sorry, Sis," he said. "If I loaned you three bucks you'd have twice as much as me." "But you'd get it back tomorrow," his sister insisted. "And anyway you've got eight cents more than I have."

How much did he have?

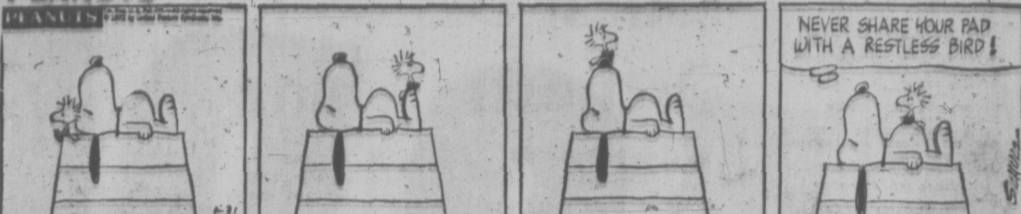

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Mike 40 years old.

Jets for Japan

TOKYO (AP)—Japan will purchase 14 RF-4E Phantom reconnaissance planes from the United States under the 1972 fiscal year budget, the defence agency said today. Officials said the agency received approval from the finance ministry to spend $90.3 million during fiscal 1972 on the planes.

Irish Riots Follow Bloodbath

BERNADETTE CONFRONTS a British Army sergeant (left) at the start of a bloody weekend in Northern Ireland which saw 13 people shot

dead by British troops at a protest march in Londonderry. Miss Devlin, the fiery Catholic rights leader, called the shootings mass murder. Right, marchers carry the body of a dead comrade from the scene of the violence. Trouble continued today as a general strike hit Belfast.

Troops Kill 13 Civilians

Times News Services

BELFAST — Bomb explosions rocked Belfast today, and rock-throwing mobs surged through the snowy streets battling British troops in mounting anger against the killing Sunday of 13 civilians by British paratroopers in Londonderry.

Northern Ireland was gripped by a general strike called by the Irish Republican Army as part of its threatened reprisals against the British. Sympathy strikes flared in the Irish Republic and Ireland recalled its ambassador from London in an official show of displeasure.

Sixteen other persons, including two women, were wounded in the shooting Sunday.

Civil rights leaders said the troops opened fire without provocation, but an army spokesman said at least 200 shots were fired at soldiers by snipers. One British soldier was wounded, the army's only casualty.

Early today, a spokesman for the official wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army said his organization will kill as many British soldiers as possible in reprisal.

At a hastily-called news conference here, the IRA spokesman said: "There will be reprisals without any shadow of doubt."

Today as snowstorms obscured Belfast, rock-throwing mobs backed by gunmen rampaged through Catholic areas. They sealed off streets with hastily-erected barricades and flaming vehicles. Hidden snipers kept British troops at bay.

An army spokesman said the worst rioting broke out in Belfast's Ardoyne, Andersonstown and Falls Road areas, all Catholic strongholds.

"The Falls Road situation has degenerated into anarchy," he said.

Bombs exploded outside a department store and a milk bar in downtown Belfast, injuring 10 persons, including two policemen. Two soldiers were shot by snipers and an army spokesman said two IRA gunmen were believed wounded in a firefight along the fringes of Belfast's Catholic neighborhood.

Sunday's incident, the worst yet involving British troops in Northern Ireland, resulted in the highest single death toll since 15 persons were killed in a Belfast pub explosion in December.

The firing began when British paratroopers stormed into the Roman Catholic Bogside area in an attempt to arrest youths who were hurling stones and nausea gas canisters at an army barricade.

TROOPS SHOT AT

An army spokesman said that as troops passed the Rossville Flats, an apartment project, shots were fired and acid bombs thrown at them. He said troops fired only at identified targets.

Bernadette Devlin, civil rights campaigner and member of the British Parliament, who was speaking to demonstrators when the shooting broke out, said: "It was mass murder by the British Army."

"This is our Sharpeville. We will never forget it," she said, referring to an incident in Sharpeville, South Africa, in 1960 when police fired on unarmed demonstrators, killing 69 and wounding 180.

Maj. Gen. Robert Ford, commander of land forces in Northern Ireland, said in a television interview: "There is absolutely no doubt that the parachute battalion opened up only after they had been fired on."

He suggested that those who died might not have been killed by British troops.

Both the rival Provisional and Official wings of the IRA in Londonderry's Creggan housing project called for an immediate general strike throughout Northern Ireland until the funerals of the shooting victims have taken place.

Londonderry vans toured the Bogside Sunday night advising all residents to stay indoors today with closed blinds in support of the strike call.

'SAVAGE' SAYS LYNCH

The killings provoked strong protest from the Irish Republican premier, Jack Lynch. He described Sunday's events as "unbelievably savage and inhuman."

He told journalists in Dublin: "I am appalled and stunned that British soldiers would indiscriminately shoot into a crowd of civilians who

Times News Service

LONDON — Bernadette Devlin, fiery Ulster independent member of the British Parliament hit, scratched and tore the hair of towering House secretary Reginald Maudling today in the House of Commons and then was half dragged kicking from the chamber.

Miss Devlin, 24, who stands a bare five feet in her shoes, rushed across the House and pounced on Maudling, a hefty six-footer as he resumed his seat next to Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Maudling had just told the House that British troops opened fire on rioters in Londonderry Sunday only after they had been fired on.

Devlin, white-faced and with shoulder-length hair flying, tore across the chamber and pounced on him.

She hit, slapped, scratched and tore his hair while the surprised Maudling tried to defend himself with his arms. At one point she almost fell on top of the prime minister.

For a moment lawmakers watched in stunned silence. Then chief government whip Francis Pym, Opposition whip Robert Carr, grabbed her, helped her to the floor and carried her out of the House.

An anonymous telephone call from an Irishman in London said today a two-man suicide squad is assigned to assassinate the British Prime Minister.

The man said in a telephone call to The Associated Press the two men had been chosen at a meeting of Saor Eire, a leftist offshoot of the Irish Republican Army, at a meeting in County Donegal Sunday night. He said the killing of Heath would be to avenge the shooting of Sunday's 13 dead.

Elsewhere in London, shouting, banner-waving Irishmen marched early today to protest outside Prime Minister Edward Heath's office about British troop action in Northern Ireland.

SYDNEY STRUCK

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Technicians were off their jobs at the CBC's radio outlet here for four hours today as part of a series of rotating strikes against the corporation by the National Association of Broadcast Employees.

Supervisory personnel took over station "CBT's" early-morning programs before the technicians returned to work at 9:30 a.m. The station was about 45 minutes late signing on.

Commonwealth Link Severed by Bhutto

RAWALPINDI (AP) — Diplomats in Rawalpindi believe an avalanche of countries now will recognize Bangladesh in the wake of Pakistan's quitting the Commonwealth. Australia and New Zealand led the way today.

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's decision Sunday to take Pakistan out of the Commonwealth was interpreted as a face-saving measure, to express displeasure with countries that recognize Bangladesh without actually severing diplomatic relations with them.

Bhutto said he was quitting the Commonwealth because Britain, Australia and New Zealand were planning to recognize Pakistan's former eastern wing. But he added: "We are prepared to have excellent bilateral relations with Britain and other Commonwealth countries."

Today, Bhutto flew to Peking with an entourage of about 60 military, political and economic aides for his first visit with China's leaders since he replaced Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan as president. As the foreign minister who reversed Pakistan's anti-Communist foreign policy in 1963, he was assured a warm welcome in the Chinese capital.

Pakistan's departure from the Commonwealth removes a major obstacle to membership in the group for Bangladesh. But by maintaining diplomatic relations with Britain and other Commonwealth countries, Bhutto probably assures continued economic assistance for his government.

A break with Britain would strand hundreds of thousands of Pakistanis living there and also would endanger trade prospects. Trade with the entire Commonwealth accounts for about 35 per cent of Pakistan's exports and imports, which total more than $1 billion a year.

The Pakistani president said relations with other countries which recognize Bangladesh will not be broken off automatically, but each case will be decided on its merits.

Bhutto severed relations with lesser Soviet bloc countries recognizing Bangladesh, but took no such action when the Soviet Union did so.

Australia and New Zealand announced recognition of Bangladesh a few hours after Pakistan withdrew from the Commonwealth. Britain was expected to follow suit soon.

In separate announcements, Australia and New Zealand expressed a desire for continued good relations with Pakistan and regret at Pakistan's leaving the Commonwealth. India was the first Commonwealth member to recognize Bangladesh, during the India-Pakistan war that freed the new country, and Cyprus became the second last week.

Ottawa Studying Housing Program

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is said to be working on huge new housing programs which, if accepted, by the provinces, would constitute the biggest single attack on downtown blight.

The program also involves a major extension to the existing assisted home-ownership plan under which low-income families can buy their homes instead of renting them.

Sources said today the program, which they say involves "a lot of money," will soon be studied by cabinet and, if approved, there will be discussions with the provinces before any legislation is drafted.

The phase of the program dealing with neighborhood improvement is said to be unique in that redevelopment will be influenced largely by people living in the areas involved. Apart from making money available for renovation and improving dwellings, there will be plans covering day-care centres and drop-in centres.

$100 MILLION PLAN

Under the assisted home-ownership plan $100 million was earmarked last year for homes that low-income earners could buy. The houses generally go to families in the $4,000 to $6,000 wage bracket.

The expansion of this program is expected to include subsidies by interest rates and larger loans, possibly up to 300 per cent of the purchase price.

The sources say the program will not necessarily involve larger overall expenditures by provinces, since there would be a redirection of money now being spent on public housing.

Former urban affairs minister Robert Andras was said to have completed his proposals before he was moved to cabinet affairs in last week's cabinet shuffle.

Reds Seek Pact

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have offered to negotiate an agreement with the Cambodian government covering the Communist's military presence in Cambodia, it was confirmed today.

Communist diplomatic sources confirmed that the approach was made through an unnamed third country which offered to act as a go-between in an attempt to reach a military understanding.

First news of the overture came from Western diplomatic sources Saturday who named the third country as the Soviet Union. But Soviet diplomats here denied today that Russia is involved.

TARIFF CUTS OFFERED

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Sunday night Canada is prepared to offer preferential tariffs to developing countries that want to export goods to this country.

Mr. Sharp told about 200 persons attending a public meeting on Bangladesh that this position will be made known by Canada at a forthcoming conference of the United Nations Committee on Trade and Development in Chile.

He said that the preferential treatment would be offered "without reciprocity."

"I hope the United States and other industrial nations will do the same."

NEWS BRIEFS

China Condemns

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — China called on the United Nations Security Council today to reject Britain's proposed independence agreement with Rhodesia and to condemn "sterely" the United States and Britain for aiding white-minority governments in Africa.

4 Blacks Die

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Four Ovambo tribesmen were killed Sunday in a clash with police in South-West Africa bringing to six the number killed in three days, South African police announced.

Snowmobilers Die

TORONTO (CP) — Snowmobile accidents killed two persons in Quebec and one in Ontario during the weekend, three of at least 20 accidental deaths across Canada. The three snowmobile deaths brings to 25 the numbers of persons killed in accidents involving the machines since Nov. 1.

Congress Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson urged congress today to "gear up" and settle the 115-day U.S. dockworkers' strike or prepare for "repeated disruptions" of its lawmaking chores by other transportation strikes.

Irving to Get Day in Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving is expected to face charges in Manhattan and Zurich as the latest speculation restored some of the uncertainty dispelled when Irving, 41, admitted through his lawyer last week that his wife, Edith, had deposited three cheques totalling $650,000 in a Swiss bank account under the name "Helga R. Hughes."

Irving and his lawyer, Maurice Nessen, said Mrs. Irving later withdrew the money at the request of Hughes and redeposited the sum intact in a second Swiss bank.

But CBS and Time magazine reported Sunday that Mrs. Irving deposited only $450,000 in the second bank. The network said in its 60 Minutes program that Irving spent $50,000 of the money, while Time said the author was "frantically trying to raise $200,000."

The likeliest scenario is that Irving somehow obtained some or all of the material in the printout, Time said. "It has been rumored, for example, that an angry former employee from the Hughes operation brought the material to Irving."

Time also reported that the 999-page autobiography Irving says was compiled after more than 100 meetings with the eccentric billionaire may be partially based on a computer printout.

COMPUTER TELLS ALL

Time said it learned of the existence of a computerized document that "contains virtually everything that has ever been published about Hughes, as well as thousands of memoranda dictated for and by Hughes—material enough for a dozen 'authentic' books."

Newfoundland Grits Gaining

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Tom Burgess, New Labrador Party leader, and Hugh Shea, Independent Progressive Conservative for St. John's South, both said Monday they would switch to the Liberal party.

Mr. Burgess also said he would enter the race for the Liberal party leadership to be decided at a convention here Feb. 1-5.

Both announcements came as Stephen Neary, social minister in the former Liberal government, announced he was withdrawing from the leadership race to support Edward Roberts, former health minister.

The moves by Mr. Burgess and Mr. Shea give the Liberals 21 of the 42 legislature seats.

Prime Minister Frank Miller's Progressive Conservative government holds 30 seats but must elect a Speaker when the House meets. One seat is vacant.

Guest Director, Orchestra Shine

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Nothing is more revealing
of the absolute quality of an orchestra than the presence
on the podium of a guest conductor.

There is wide scope in music for individuality among artists and the differences,
both subtle and distinctive,
between two fine conductors
can be numerous.

To meet the challenge successfully the orchestra must be flexible and at the same
time thoroughly disciplined,
alert and responsive.

For the current pair of concerts (Sunday and tonight at 8:30) Victoria Symphony Orchestra is conducted by Simon
Streitfeld, the youthful acting and associate conductor of Vancouver Symphony.

And to further stiffen the
challenge, the program
Streitfeld has chosen is far
from simple.

EXCITING TREATMENT
From the complex brass
and percussion writing of Malcolm Arnold's English
Dances to the exacting virtuosity of the Dvorak D Major Symphony finale, the difficulties are many.

But Sunday's performance
made small issue of the problems. It soared confidently,
was full of pleasure and a stimulation that bordered at times on excitement.

Streitfeld is an intense,
virile conductor. He drives his musical forces with determination and is at his most interesting when he is developing mighty climaxes and

shaping long, looping phrases
in an urgent forward movement.

His understanding of the idiom of Arnold's two sets of
dances is lively and exact and while the Benjamin Britten
Sea Interludes lacked atmosphere somewhat, they were meticulously developed in texture and the moulding of phrase.

Beautiful attack and tone in
the brass section and, notably, security in the horns
were outstanding in the dances.

The measure of the orchestra's strings was taken to the full in Vaughan Williams' superb Fantasia on a theme of Thomas Tallis.

TONES RICH
Regarded as a masterpiece
for the string choir it is written for double string orchestra and quartet.

The Victoria Orchestra's
performance demonstrated an excellent discipline, and an increasing vitality and richness
of tone to charm the ear.

This discipline, precision
and vitality were also noticeable in big, brilliant, glowingly
poetic Dvorak Symphony.

Streitfeld made extensive demands on his musicians in
long passages of sustained passion and frenetic crescendos.

But the orchestra never disappointed him. Alert, assured
and enduring in vigor, both ensemble and conductor fully earned the ovation awarded
them at the conclusion.

4,000 Bengalis Believed Buried

COMILLA (Reuters) Between 3,000 and 4,000 bodies of Bengalis killed by the Pakistani army are believed to be buried in and around Comilla
garrison, 100 miles east of Dacca in Bangladesh, a police officer said.

Sub-Inspector Fazlur Rahman, in charge of the investigation, said Sunday night 700 bodies have been found in less than a week.

Digging is continuing and at least 3,000 and perhaps as many as 4,000 bodies are expected to be found, he said.

Lions Plan To Increase Ticket Prices

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wes
Munsie, president of British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, has announced there likely will be an increase in ticket prices for Lions' games at Empire
Stadium this season.

Munsie said in an interview
"we have the matter of an increase in ticket prices under consideration."

Last season, ticket prices
were $5.50, $4 and $3. The Lions last raised ticket prices
in 1966 when top-priced seats
were increased by 50 cents.

An increase would make the Lions the third CFL club to raise prices. Montreal
Alouettes increased their top price to $9 from $6.50, and Saskatchewan Roughriders
announced ticket prices at Regina's Taylor Field would be increased this year.

Island Teams Lead Tourney

NORTH VANCOUVER —
Campbell River stepped Victoria High 37-28 to win the eight-team Norsemen girls'
senior high school basketball
tournament.

Reynolds of Victoria hammered Windsor of North Vancouver 39-17 to take third place for a Vancouver Island
sweep of the top three positions.

Windsor finished fourth and Garibaldi, Fernberton, North
Van and Howe Sound rounded
out the standings in that order.

DERBY ENTRY FROM CALGARY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —
A Canadian horse is the first

Kentucky Derby at Churchill
Downs.

A nominating form, together with a cheque for $100
came from K. O. Fowle of Calgary, making it official for Harry the first, a non-starting son of Crozier.

Nominations for the derby
will close Feb. 15. The 98th
derby, with $125,000 added,
will be run at the Downs in May.

SUPER BOWL TOPS ON TV

tween Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins was watched
on television by more viewers
than any other sports event in history, CBS-TV has announced.

The network said the national Nielsen ratings showed that the Super Bowl was seen in 20,450,000 homes by an estimated 65 million viewers and
attracted 74 per cent of all those watching television at the time.

Beavers Acquire New Field Boss

Ray Hathaway is the new field manager for the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast League.

Hathaway, 55, who played
two seasons with the parent
Cleveland Indians, was formerly a manager at Jacksonville, Fla.

Thunderettes Defeat Pipers

versity of British Columbia
Thunderettes defeated Seattle
Sandpipers 48-42 Sunday in an
Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Basketball League game.

Terry McGovern paced UBC
with 14 points.

Oregon Runner Laps Jim Ryan

PORTLAND (AP) — Steve Prefontaine lapped Jim Ryan and won the two-mile in the fastest time of the indoor track season at the Oregon indoor track and field meet Saturday night. Prefontaine, 21-year-old junior at the University of Oregon, was clocked at 8:26.6, only four-tenths of a second over the American record held by Frank Shorter.

Americans Lose To Czech Squad

TOKYO (Reuters) — Czechoslovakia's Olympic hockey team defeated the United States 4-1 Saturday on the second day of a six-nation
hockey tournament here.

Poland beat Switzerland, 8-4 in another match of the tournament. The third and fourth-day matches are scheduled for Feb. 15 and 16, after
the Sapporo Winter Olympics.

Pact's Proposals On Old Ground

MOSCOW (WP) — The
Warsaw Pact's new declaration on a European security conference and troop reductions in Europe "has advanced absolutely nothing,"
in the view of senior western diplomats here.

These diplomats expressed
bafflement as to why the senior Communist party leaders
of all the Warsaw Pact nations met at this time only to reiterate old positions. They speculated that the talks may have covered subjects now
mentioned in the communiques,
such as China.

Meeting in Prague last Tuesday and Wednesday, the leaders of all the Warsaw Pact powers proposed seven points that could be taken up
at a European security conference.

These points contained
"nothing new," western diplomats have decided after studying them.

The Communist nations also used some new language regarding the possibility of talks
on troop reductions in Europe.
First, they said in their Wednesday communique that troop reductions would involve "both foreign and national" forces, which has always been the western position.

The phrase covers the possibility, for example, that reductions of both Soviet and
East German forces in East
Germany might be negotiable
in return for a reduction of

U.S. and British forces in West Germany.

"This is nothing different than what they have already told us privately," a western diplomat said. However, it was the first occasion that the Communists used the "foreign
and national" formulation in
a public document.

The second substantive reference to talks on troop reductions in the Prague communique said such talks
"should not be the prerogative
of the existing military-political alliances in Europe."

That seemed to be a rejection of the western position.
The NATO countries (except France) have been trying to work together to explore the possibility of troop reductions
talks with the Russians. They have named Manlio Brosio,
NATO's former secretary general, as their envoy for this purpose.

However, the Russians have shown absolutely no interest
in inviting Brosio to Moscow,
and the Prague communique appeared to rule out any future invitation. Other NATO
diplomats say they believe the Brosio mission is dead.

The whole question seems highly problematical at the moment, since all diplomatic movements in Europe are at a standstill pending final ratification of the West German treaties with Poland and the Soviet Union, and the various big four and inter-German agreements on West Berlin.
The Russians have insisted on

completion of all these in advance of further diplomatic activity, in the view of the NATO countries.

That Enduring Magic Of the Silver Lining

Two men look out through the same bars:
One sees the mud, and one the stars.

—Frederick Langbridge

Our Blue Monday notes today will be entirely about the long-lost art of optimism, defined by our dictionary as "a tendency to expect the best possible outcome or to dwell upon the most hopeful aspects of a situation." So let's everybody cheer up a little, shall we?

The subject comes to mind, firstly, because we've just heard about a plan to harness the power of optimism in the cause of world peace. It is the splendid notion of one of our favorite women, Mrs. Norman Alcock, wife of the founder of the Canadian Peace Research Institute which is, itself, something of a monument to the philosophy that every cloud has its silver lining.

"Everything has been looking so gloomy of late in our various research studies," Pat Alcock writes us, "that I have decided to promote a study designed to find the hopeful signs politically in this divided world, dig them out, line them up and publicize them, so that an air of optimism might start a chain reaction to break the feeling of helplessness and hopelessness. I guess I still believe in miracles and that is what we need."

Pat's note chanced to arrive in the same mail that brought us a great, fat bundle of columns written by one Dr. Frank Crane. If that name doesn't ring a bell — and it didn't for me — it's simply because Dr. Crane was the reigning syndicated columnist of a full 50 years ago and these particular pieces have been in scrapbooks and attic trunks for a half century.

Nothing on this earth is quite so perishable as yesterday's newspaper column and Frank was not what you'd call a penetrating writer. Yet, in his day, more people read his work than any other author of the times and even today these simplistic essays reach across the years with a genuine impact. We have read them all with a professional's eye, hoping to discover the secret of their remarkable durability, and have decided that it all comes down to the man, himself.

Dr. Crane was an optimist. He was a happy man. In every word he wrote there was a contagious zest for life and for living it. He gave pleasure. He gave hope. And that, it seems clear, is a light that never dims.

In one typical piece he sums up his philosophy in one short paragraph: "I am more and more inclining to the belief that we do not emphasize enough the sheer delight of merely being alive. If we would often take stock of our little satisfactions, the unqualified sensations of pleasure that we habitually shun over and take for granted, we would increase the average of our contentment."

The Oak Bay reader who sent me these faded clippings, a woman now in her eighties, recalls meeting Dr. Crane in 1925 on the Empress of Canada during the brief crossing from Victoria to Vancouver.

"I discovered him about seven o'clock in the morning sitting in the elegant library of the liner," she remembers. "His feet were up on a highly polished table. He was smoking a long, black cigar. His opening remarks, when I introduced myself as an avid reader, certainly bore out his own particular brand of enjoying life. 'You know,' he said, 'I shouldn't have my feet on this beautiful table and I shouldn't be smoking this cigar so early in the morning. It is all just a little bit wicked and I love it!'"

One of his most characteristic columns appeared in the Halifax Chronicle exactly 52 years ago this month. It makes a pleasant self-portrait of a man who was getting the most out of life.

"I got to thinking this morning of how many things there are in my daily experience that are agreeable," he wrote. "I was amazed at how many ways there are in which Nature contrives to make me feel good."

"For instance, to begin at the beginning of the day. I like to get up. I like to love the first minutes of being awake. I like to stretch my limbs and shake off sleep, to roll out of bed and put my nose out of the window and drink in the fresh early air, and see the young sunlight, not yet glaring and hot, but full of the promise of life, a sweet light and soft, and to see the trees seeming so glad and virile — oh, it's great!"

"Then there are a thousand other things I like. I like the sun and to sit in the shade, to walk and to rest afterwards. I like breathing. Did you ever stop to think how delicious air is?"

"I like to ride on the trolley car. I like my favorite chair. I like my pen and my pad of paper, and to see words grow under my hand. I like a good novel. I like a good road and a hedge and clumps of bushes. I like to ride in a taxicab through the crowded streets. I like to look at multitudes. And I like to be alone."

"I like walls and pavements. I like a man to talk to me as if I interested him. I like little children. I like old folks. I like big, husky workmen lifting heavy loads. I like people who get excited over purely intellectual problems. I like to make money and to spend it. I like to see young people in love."

"In short, I fear, I am a hopeless sensualist. For Stevenson's jingle grows on me: 'The world is so full of a number of things that we should all be as happy as kings.'"

It's an essay that we mean to pass along to the Allocks and their dedicated group at the Peace Research Institute. One way to a lasting world peace could just be that reminder that it's so nice to be breathing.

Hood Is Winner Of Council Seat

All Hood won the Victoria aldermanic by-election Saturday, pulling a small upset over Victoria Credit Bureau Manager Bob Ellis.

Ellis was the favorite before the polling, having bested Hood by 223 votes in the regular aldermanic election Dec. 11.

Hood beat Ellis by 171 votes as well as six other candidates trying for the seat left open by the death of Robert Baird-Dec. 7.

The other losers: defeated majority candidate Foster Isherwood, 553; Joyce Heynsbrock, 354; Margaret Richards, 333; Sally Rogers, 203; Henry Bitterman, 150; Jim Beaubien, 129.

Voting was light at 17.13 per cent of the electorate, but heavier than the last aldermanic by-election in August, 1965 when the turnout was 13.76.

A total of 3,730 people turned out to vote and there were 28 spoiled ballots.

Hood, who ran his fourth aldermanic race Saturday, took over the new lands and housing committee for Victoria council.

Two Persons Hurt In Separate Crashes

Hazel Titian, 553 David St. is in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today with multiple injuries suffered when she was struck by a car while crossing Rock Bay near Hillside Saturday night.

Police said the car was driven by Allan McLean, 271 Beechwood. The accident occurred at 11:30 p.m.

In another accident Saturday night, Tommy Arkansall, 8, of 242 Old Island Highway, was struck by a car while running across the highway near his home.

Driver of the car was Jack Horne of 2214 Sooke Road, Colwood.

The hospital reports the Arkansall boy in satisfactory condition today.

Jobless Aid Urged

Changes to the B.C. Medical Services to permit the jobless to benefit from the plan, were urged Saturday by Susan Talbot, president of the Community Action Group.

She noted that people on unemployment insurance or on welfare are not eligible for medical or dental care under the plan.

"Medical care is based on the previous year's income," she pointed out. "If you receive $1,000 over your taxable amount, you must pay the maximum of $12.50 per month. When on welfare or unemployed you are not earning this amount and it's impossible to meet this commitment."

Strike Tactics Ruled Out In Hospital Union Vote

The 10,500-member Hospital Employees Union will appear before the B.C. Mediation Commission in its contract dispute with 73 hospitals.

This decision, made by the union's provincial executive Sunday, means there will be no strikes against hospitals.

It took three days of meetings to break a 7-to-7 deadlock on the executive. The decision to appear before the commission, rather than strike, came in an 8-to-6 vote.

CABINET ORDER

Almost two weeks ago, the B.C. cabinet ordered compulsory arbitration by the commission of the contract dispute and also ordered that no strikes take place. Despite this, Vancouver General Hospital employees last Thursday voted 94 per cent in favor of a strike.

Bill Rolfe, director of technical services for the union, said today the decision was made "only after very serious consideration of the other alternatives — illegal strike or not appearing before the commission."

He said the "obvious reason" for not striking is because "all it would show is

the ability of a union to cripple a hospital. We are very sensitive to this. We must act responsibly. The decision not to strike was made because of the very serious consequences and the fact it would do little to remedy the basic problem. A strike in the hospital industry won't change the government."

MOST UNETHICAL

Rolfe criticized the Registered Nurses Association of

B.C., which voluntarily agreed to go before the commission, for using Hospital Employees Union wage classifications to argue the case for more pay for professional nurses.

"It is most inappropriate and unethical for one union to make a comparison with another in the same industry," he said.

He said in such a case a union should demonstrate that the general level of wages should be adjusted.

POOR COMPARISON

"The RNAs chose to tear down other people who work in the same industry. Basically, they compared nurses aides, practical nurses and orderlies and in terms of their own education and profession, they said they required a very substantial increase to get themselves in line with these people."

"They implied these other people should mark time," Rolfe said. Negotiations between both HEU and the RNABC and the B.C. Hospitals Association broke down in December after the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, the government agency which pays hospital operating costs, announced a ceiling of 6.3 per cent in wages and fringe benefits in 1972 hospital budgets.

The Hospital Employees Union was seeking a 25 per cent raise over two years. Half its members earn between $406 and $433 a month.

The RNABC has sought two 10 per cent raises over two years. Its members start at $590 a month rising to $740 a month after six years.

Victoria hospitals involved in the contract dispute are St. Joseph's, where employees had voted in favor of a strike, Royal Jubilee, St. Mary's Priory, Mount St. Mary and Queen Alexandra Sanatorium.

City Eyes Short-Term Bonds

The city of Victoria is planning to take advantage of a hungry short-term bond market to pay for its capital works projects.

City hall has asked investment houses to come forward with proposals for financing $850,000 in debentures which would mature in 1976 or 1977.

The city will be able to pay off the short-term bonds because by the time they mature, the city's long-term debt payments will have been drastically reduced.

Annual debt repayments

will fall from $1,247,000 in 1975 to $602,000 in 1976.

The $850,000 is for the remaining commitments from the city's first capital budget.

The idea of the new department, believed by city officials to be the first of its kind in the province, is to capitalize on the low rates of interest available in short-term money.

Savings money in all types of financial houses has been accumulating during a period when business is not expanding at a sufficient rate to use up the funds.

Thus the houses are eager to handle short-term debentures at favorable interest rates.

Besides the new department for capital works, which has been approved by the provincial government, the city also plans to increase its savings by allowing the financial houses to write the terms of the bond issues.

Normally the city writes all the terms of the package into a bylaw which it must pass in council before going to the money market.

If the new system works, the houses will come to the city with specific proposals.

"We could get an even better rate if the purchaser could prescribe the terms of issue such as coupon rate, issue and maturity date, etc.," treasurer Jim Branley said in a report on the proposal.

An indication of the success of the new system has been given, with firm offers already received from two institutions.

Deadline for proposals on the $850,000 issue is 4:30 p.m. Feb. 8.

Engineers Protest With Pickets

Fifty pickets were outside the Parliament Buildings today protesting proposed changes in the law over boilers in buildings.

A busload of stationary engineers came from Vancouver this morning and were augmented by local engineers.

The government has announced a new Safety Engineering Services Act.

NO DETAILS

However, no details of the changes have been made public and a bill has not been presented to the legislature.

The proposed act was mentioned in the government's throne speech, where it was said the new act would incorporate safety provisions of several acts, primarily boiler, gas and electrical inspection.

The picketing, which was also staged last Friday outside the provincial boiler inspection office in Vancouver, was organized by the Engineers' Joint Council, which represents stationary engineers in several organizations.

Council chairman Bob Berger, an official of the Service Employees International Union, said the new act has been drawn up in "complete secrecy." Neither employers nor engineers were consulted, he said.

While the government has announced no details, Berger said it has been indicated that operation of a boiler by an engineer will not be compulsory if the boiler is of less than 75 horsepower. Current limit is 50 horsepower.

Berger said the engineers want to know why the government plans a new act when it was not sought by them or by employers. He said provisions of the Boiler Inspection Act, Gas Inspection Act and Electrical Inspection Act cannot be lumped together because two are primarily oriented towards the home while the boiler act is primarily aimed at industry and office buildings.

Irish Riots Follow Bloodbath

BERNADETTE CONFRONTS a British Army sergeant (left) at the start of a bloody weekend in Northern Ireland which saw 13 people shot

dead by British troops at a protest march in Londonderry. Miss Devlin, the fiery Catholic rights leader, called the shootings mass murder. Right, marchers carry the body of a dead comrade from the scene of the violence. Trouble continued today as a general strike hit Belfast.

Troops Kill 13 Civilians

Times News Services

BELFAST — Bomb explosions rocked Belfast today, and rock-throwing mobs surged through the snowy streets battling British troops in mounting anger against the killing Sunday of 13 civilians by British paratroopers in Londonderry.

Northern Ireland was gripped by a general strike called by the Irish Republican Army as part of its threatened reprisals against the British. Sympathy strikes flared in the Irish Republic and Ireland recalled its ambassador from London in an official show of displeasure.

Sixteen other persons, including two women, were wounded in the shooting Sunday.

Civil rights leaders said the troops opened fire without provocation, but an army spokesman said at least 200 shots were fired by soldiers by snipers. One British soldier was wounded, the army's only casualty.

Early today, a spokesman for the official wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army said his organization will kill as many British soldiers as possible in reprisal.

At a hastily-called news conference here, the IRA spokesman said: "There will be reprisals without any shadow of doubt."

Today as snowstorms obscured Belfast, rock-throwing mobs backed by gunmen rampaged through Catholic areas. They sealed off streets with hastily-erected barricades and flaming vehicles. Hidden snipers kept British troops at bay.

An army spokesman said the worst rioting broke out in Belfast's Ardoyne, Andersonstown and Falls Road areas, all Catholic strongholds.

"The Falls Road situation has degenerated into anarchy," he said.

Bombs exploded outside a department store and a milk bar in downtown Belfast, injuring 10 persons, including two policemen. Two soldiers were shot by snipers and an army spokesman said two IRA gunmen were believed wounded in a firefight along the fringes of Belfast's Catholic neighborhood.

Sunday's incident, the worst yet involving British troops in Northern Ireland, resulted in the highest single death toll since 15 persons were killed in a Belfast pub explosion in December.

The firing began when British paratroopers stormed into the Roman Catholic Bogside area in an attempt to arrest youths who were hurling stones and nausea gas canisters at an army barricade.

TROOPS SHOT AT
An army spokesman said that as troops passed the Roosevelt Flats, an apartment project, shots were fired and acid bombs thrown at them. He said troops fired only at identified targets.

Bernadette Devlin, civil rights campaigner and member of the British Parliament, who was speaking to demonstrators when the shooting broke out, said: "It was mass murder by the British Army."

"This is our Sharpeville. We will never forget it," she said, referring to an incident in Sharpeville, South Africa, in 1960 when police fired on unarmed demonstrators, killing 69 and wounding 180.

Maj.-Gen. Robert Ford, commander of land forces in Northern Ireland, said in a television interview: "There is absolutely no doubt that the parachute battalion opened up only after they had been fired on."

He suggested that those who died might not have been killed by British troops.

Both the rival Provisional and Official wings of the IRA in Londonderry's Creggan housing project called for an immediate general strike throughout Northern Ireland until the funerals of the shooting victims have taken place.

Loudspeaker vans toured the Bogside Sunday night advising all residents to stay indoors today with closed blinds in support of the strike call.

'SAVAGE' SAYS LYNCH
The killings provoked strong protest from the Irish Republican premier, Jack Lynch. He described Sunday's events as "unbelievably savage and inhuman."

He told journalists in Dublin: "I am appalled and stunned that British soldiers would indiscriminately shoot into a crowd of civilians who were not armed."

Devlin Assaults Maudling

Times News Services

LONDON — Bernadette Devlin, fiery Ulster independent member of the British Parliament hit, scratched and tore the hair of towering House secretary Reginald Maudling today in the House of Commons and then was half dragged kicking from the chamber.

Miss Devlin, 24, who stands a bare five feet in her shoes, rushed across the House and pounced on Maudling, a hefty six-footer as he resumed his seat next to Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Maudling had just told the House that British troops opened fire on rioters in Londonderry Sunday only after they had been fired on.

SLAP, SCRATCH

Maudling announced the government is setting up an independent inquiry into the rioting and the shooting that followed.

As Maudling finished and resumed his seat on the government front bench, Miss

New finance minister tested today. See page 7.

Devlin, white-faced and with shoulder-length hair flying, tore across the chamber and pounced on him.

She hit, slapped, scratched and tore his hair while the surprised Maudling tried to defend himself with his arms. At one point she almost fell on top of the prime minister.

For a moment lawmakers watched in stunned silence.

Then chief government whip Francis Pym and Opposition whip Robert Mellish grabbed her, helped by several Conservatives and Labor party lawmakers, and half carried, half dragged Devlin, kicking and shouting out of the house.

An anonymous telephone call from an Irishman in London said today a two-man suicide squad is assigned to assassinate the British Prime Minister.

The man said in a telephone call to The Associated Press the two men had been chosen at a meeting of Saor Eire, a leftist offshoot of the Irish Republican Army, at a meeting in County Donegal Sunday night. He said the killing of Heath would be to avenge the shooting of Sunday's 13 dead.

Elsewhere in London, shouting, banner-waving Irishmen marched early today to protest outside Prime Minister Edward Heath's office about British troop action in Northern Ireland.

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — China called on the United Nations Security Council today to reject Britain's proposed independence agreement with Rhodesia and to condemn "sternly" the United States and Britain for aiding white-minority governments in Africa.

4 Blacks Die

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — Four Ovambo tribesmen were killed Sunday in a clash with police in South-West Africa bringing to six the number killed in three days. South African police announced.

Snowmobilers Die

TORONTO (CP) — Snowmobile accidents killed two persons in Quebec and one in Ontario during the weekend, three of at least 39 accidental deaths across Canada. The three snowmobile deaths brings to 54 the numbers of persons killed in accidents involving the machines since Nov. 1.

Congress Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson urged congress today to "gear up" and settle the 115-day U.S. dockworkers' strike or prepare for "repeated disruptions" of its lawmaking chores by other transportation strikes.

Ottawa Studying Housing Program

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is said to be working on huge new housing programs which, if accepted by the provinces, would constitute the biggest single attack on downtown blight.

The program also involves a major extension to the existing assisted home-ownership plan under which low-income families can buy their homes instead of renting them.

Sources said today the program, which they say involves "a lot of money," will soon be studied by cabinet and, if approved, there will be discussions with the provinces before any legislation is drafted.

The phase of the program dealing with neighborhood improvement is said to be unique in that redevelopment will be influenced largely by people living in the areas involved. Apart from making money available for renovating and improving dwellings, there will be plans covering day-care centres and drop-in centres.

$100 MILLION PLAN

Under the assisted home-ownership plan $100 million was earmarked last year for homes that low-income earners could buy. The houses generally go to families in the $4,000 to $6,000 wage bracket.

The expansion of this program is expected to include subsidies on interest rates and larger loans, possibly up to 100 per cent of the purchase price.

The sources say the program will not necessarily involve larger over-all expenditures by provinces, since there would be a redirection of money now being spent on public housing.

Former urban affairs minister Robert Andras was said to have completed his proposals before he was moved to consumer affairs in last week's cabinet shuffle.

TARIFF CUTS OFFERED

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Sunday night Canada is prepared to offer preferential tariffs to developing countries that want to export goods to this country.

Mr. Sharp told about 200 persons attending a public meeting on Bangladesh that this position will be made known by Canada at a four-day conference of the United Nations Committee on Trade and Developing in Chile.

He said that the preferential treatment would be offered "without reciprocity."

He hoped the United States and other industrial nations will do the same.

Irving to Get Day in Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving is expected to face charges in Manhattan and Zurich as the mystery surrounding his alleged autobiography of reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes spawned new theories on the origin of the book and the disposal of royalty cheques.

A grand jury is investigating what became of the $650,000 that McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. gave Irving to transmit to Hughes as payment for the book. It was reported that Irving would ask for a delay in his grand jury appearance so he could brief his new lawyer on the case.

In Zurich, police issued a warrant for Irving's arrest.

The latest speculation restored some of the uncertainty dispelled when Irving, 41, admitted through his lawyer last week that his wife, Edith, had deposited three cheques totalling $650,000 in a Swiss bank account under the name "Heiga R. Hughes."

Irving and his lawyer, Maurice Nessen, said Mrs. Irving later withdrew the money at the request of Hughes and redeposited the sum intact in a second Swiss bank.

But CBS and Time magazine reported Sunday that Mrs. Irving deposited only $450,000 in the second bank. The network said in its 60 Minutes program that Irving spent $50,000 of the money, while Time said the author was "frantically trying to raise $200,000."

COMPUTER TELLS ALL

Time also reported that the 999-page autobiography Irving says was compiled after more than 100 meetings with the eccentric billionaire may be partially based on a computer printout.

Time said it learned of the existence of a computerized document that "contains virtually everything that has ever been published about Hughes, as well as thousands of memoranda dictated for and by Hughes—material enough for a dozen 'authentic' books."

The most likely scenario is that Irving somehow obtained some or all of the material in the printout. Time said: "It has been rumored, for example, that an angry former employee from the Hughes operation brought the material to Irving."

Newfoundland Grits Gaining

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Tom Burgess, New Labrador Party leader, and Hugh Shea, independent Progressive Conservative for St. John's South, both said today they would switch to the Liberal party.

M. Burgess also said he would enter the race for the Liberal party leadership to be decided at a convention here Feb. 15.

Both announcements came as Stephen Neary, social minister in the former Liberal government, announced he was withdrawing from the leadership race to support Edward Roberts, former health minister.

The moves by Mr. Burgess and Mr. Shea give the Liberals 21 of the 42 legislative seats.

Premier Frank Moores' Progressive Conservative government holds 20 seats but must elect a speaker when the house meets. One seat is vacant.

Reds Seek Pact

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have offered to negotiate an agreement with the Cambodian government covering the Communist's military presence in Cambodia, it was confirmed today.

Communist diplomatic sources confirmed that the approach was made through an unnamed third country which, offered to act as a go-between in an attempt to reach a military understanding.

First news of the overture came from Western diplomatic sources Saturday who named the third country as the Soviet Union. But Soviet diplomats here denied today that Russia is involved.
